THE BATTLE rages on for control of the pristine Big Sur coast (above, looking south towards Point Sur) as members of a team from Big Sur and the Monterey Peninsula testify in Washington D.C. this week in opposition to Sen. Pete Wilson's proposed bill to federalize Big Sur. The Pine Cone's own Michael Gardner is also in Washington to keep abreast of the developments. His first report, on a meeting between the team and aides of Sen. Alan Cranston, co-sponsor of the bill, starts below. (Roger Fremier photo.)

Cranston may be softening stance on Big Sur

By MICHAEL GARDNER

WASHINGTON — A 20-member strong delegation from the Friends of the Big Sur coast will testify before a Senate Subcommittee July 31 buoyed by news that Sen. Alan Cranston apparently has softened his support of proposed legislation to federalize Big Sur and now appears ready to seriously consider Rep. Leon Panetta's compromise, the already-created "Coastal Partnership for Big Sur."

Cranston, a leading Democrat and silent co-sponsor of California Republican Sen. Pete Wilson's proposed bill to bring Big Sur under the control of the federal government, also is scheduled to testify in hearings before the Senate Subcommittee on Public Lands, Reserved Water and Resource Conservation.

As the senior senator from California and longtime champion of environmental issues, what Cranston says may very well determine whether Wilson's bill dies in committee or reaches the floor for a full vote of the Senate. No date has been set for a committee vote, which usually takes place a few weeks after a hearing.

How strongly Cranston will support Wilson's bill still is a mystery because the senator was in California earlier this week, including a re-election campaign stop in Monterey Monday, and was not expected to be available for a meeting with the Friends of the Big Sur Coast as its members extensively lobbied senators on Tuesday and Wednesday.

However, a small delegation from the Friends did meet with Cranston's top aide, Roy Greenaway, Monday afternoon at the senator's office inside the Capitol.

Greenaway, although softening his stance a little in the middle of the session by saying "I wouldn't assume Alan will back off Wilson's bill," did strongly hint that Panetta's compromise may be endorsed by Cranston if the Big Sur federalization legislation stalls.

"We know where you're coming from. I think that ultimately the goals are identical — to prevent development from spoiling Big Sur," Greenaway said. "I think if there is a difference it is Sen. Cranston does not have the confidence it can be done without the federal government."

Cranston agreed to co-sponsor Wilson's bill because he supports the idea of protecting Big Sur, but "he's not endorsing every word or every line," Greenaway said.

ADDRESSING PANETTA'S proposal, Greenaway said that Cranston is "delighted with what Leon has been doing," and added "If it can be done, and it works, I think he feels that's the way to go...I would anticipate Alan will be highly commendatory of what Leon has done."

The Coastal Partnership for Big Sur may have time to prove it can succeed because Greenaway indicated that he would be "very surprised" if a full Senate vote is taken this year.

And Greenaway does not believe that the House of Representatives will support the bill as long as Panetta remains opposed. "It won't go anywhere unless Leon wants it."

And thus far Panetta remains steadfastly opposed to Wilson's legislation, even though the Democratic congressman from Carmel Valley at one time introduced a measure similar to the one proposed by Wilson.

Panetta is scheduled to testify in support of his compromise saying that the partnership does what Wilson proposes without the need for federal legislation.

The coastal partnership has established a Big Sur Preservation Commission charged with raising $25 million to preserve scenic views from Highway 1. The partnership also brings together under one umbrella organization the numerous government agencies and citizen factions in Big Sur, ranging from the Friends of the Sea Otter to the Big Sur Land Trust to the County of Monterey to the U.S. Forest Service. The Forest Service also promises to work in conjunction with the county to ensure that its draft Los Padres Forest Managment Plan is compatible with the Big Sur Land Use Plan.

The Friends of the Big Sur Coast sees Panetta and the coastal partnership as the key to defeating the Wilson bill. As Friends member Alan Perlmutter put it, "That's the biggest single piece of ammunition we have."

That's not to mean there are no more big guns beyond Panetta.

IRONICALLY, THIS time around Panetta will be on the same side with old nemesis S.I. Hayakawa, the former Republican senator from California, who successfully stonewalled separate Big Sur federalization measures introduced by Cranston and Panetta in 1979 and again in 1980.

Hayakawa, with his trademark tam-o'-shanter, is scheduled to testify at the hearing, as is Monterey County Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman.

Wilson, too, will be there. But his only

Forced donation

Dear Editor:

Forces at work are hoping to tap the U.S. Treasury to the tune of $1.5 billion reparations for Japanese-Americans interned during World War II under the War Relocation Act of 1942.

All Americans should become fully aware that on July 2, 1948, then-President Harry Truman signed into effect Public Law No. 886, the Japanese-American Evacuation Claims Act. The Claims Act provided the evacuees with the opportunity to file for damages done them as the result of their internment. They had until Jan. 3, 1950 to file.

Some 23,689 grievances were filed before the deadline. The claims asked for a total of $131,949,176. In actual payment, some $38 million was paid.

Incidentally, according to report, the JACL (Japanese American Citizen's League) received 10 percent of all claims paid for its council. The 10 percent was described by one source as a sort of "forced donation." Back in 1950 you could get quite a bit of counseling for $3.8 million.

But, of course, we have had inflation since those days. Now, one writer seems to believe that it will take $1.5 billion to assuage those wounds inflicted some 40 years ago.

There is one interesting obstacle found in Public Law No. 886. It rather bluntly states: "The attorney general shall receive claims for a period of 18 months from the date of enactment of this act," and that "all claims not presented within that time shall be forever barred on this subject."

Should the legal counsel of the plaintiffs once again receive 10 percent for providing counsel, that sounds as though they will receive a $150 million fee.

$150 million will buy a lot. It might even dissolve a statute of limitations.

Save our coastline

Dear Editor:

A wild and wet Pacific Ocean wonderland for all Americans is being proposed in Sacramento. It can be compared with the spectacular legacies of Theodore Roosevelt and other great conservationists. It would be the largest national marine sanctuary ever — extending in those areas where offshore oil development is not taking place. In late August, the California Senate will vote on whether or not to request Congress to establish this national ocean park off our coasts.

All Californians who have sought or who plan to seek relaxation and recreation along this pristine California coastline will want to write or call Sacramento in support of the Hauser-keene Marine Sanctuary Resolution. Perhaps the biggest beneficiaries of all this would be us — that is, folks who are actually coastal residents.

Ultimately, of course, the question is: Who owns our coast — we millions of Americans or seven big oil companies and their shareholders? This marine sanctuary will be a gift to our children and grandchildren; it will benefit commercial and sports fishermen, divers, campers, vacationers, small business owners, and all of the hardworking Americans who, just once in a while, "have to get away from it all."

Please write a letter or send a card to State Sen. Ken Maddy, The State Capital, Sacramento, CA 95814, and let him know you support the Marine Sanctuary Resolution (AJR 91).

No-stick president

Dear Editor:

Quite clearly, no amount of pleading, logic, criticism, or anything else can even make a dent in the Teflon of Reaganism. If we care enough about this country to want to save it, there will have to be a Judge Sirica-type investigation of the obvious connection between the Reagan administration and some secret Bircher-type organization that is calling all the shots and filling all of the appointment vacancies.

Thanks a million

Dear Editor:

I'm writing this in praise of the postal employees of our Carmel post office.

These men and women are so pleasant and so helpful that it's a pleasure to do business with them!

I'm sure the residents of Carmel join me in expressing our heartfelt "thanks a million" to each and every one of you!

A logical balance

Dear Editor:

The Board of Supervisors deserves much praise for their decision on July 1 to limit the High Meadow development in Carmel to 18 units, to include low-income housing.

Such decisions strike a logical balance between the developmental and environmental needs of our beautiful area. Thank you.

Residents want annex

Dear Editor:

The time for a final decision on the detached library annex proposal to be built on the three city owned lots on Lincoln Street at Sixth Avenue is close at hand, and the annex is in serious danger of not being approved by the Carmel City Council.

At the July city council meeting, the consensus of the city council was to ask for the comments of the library board. It is my understanding that the library board has not, and may not, take a public position on the detached annex proposal, and is instead waiting for policy direction from the city council. This unfortunate situation may result in every library patron being denied adequate library facilites for many years in the future; additional studies and discussion will not solve the problem.

Personally, I support the existing annex plans. The annex has been very well designed and would be very attractive. It will satisfy a demonstrated need for additional space which the library has experienced for many years. I believe that an overwhelming number of Carmel residents and library patrons support the detached annex proposal; however, it appears that the city council is not listening to us (something the new city council members indicated they would do and in fact, was, I recall, among the reasons why they sought election).

I also cannot understand why the members of the library board, either as a board or individually, have refused to take a public stand on this issue. The library board should assume a strong leadership position and make every attempt to convert their widespread public support into personal letters and telephone calls to the city council so that the city council will have no choice but to carry out the desire of their constituents on this important issue.

Once again, I believe that certain members of the city council have expressed and voted their own long-standing personal viewpoint on this issue, and may not vote in accordance with the views of their constituents as they should do on every issue that comes before them.

A threat to everyone

Dear Editor:

The most devastating "development" ever proposed for the Central California Coastal Area is not a motel or apartment complex — but the Wilson bill to federalize the Big Sur coast.

The bill is a wolf in sheep's clothing — a hoax being sold verbally to well-meaning citizens of this country as a measure to protect and preserve Big Sur for the benefit of mankind, forever.

Anyone who has read the bill in its entirety is astounded to learn the difference between written language of the bill and glowing promises made by the Wilson staff — and uninformed believers.

In fact, written language of the bill does not protect, preserve, or save anything except the power of the Secretary of Agriculture to arbitrarily establish or change undefined park boundaries at will, establish and construct visitor-serving facilities and concessions, negotiate and award damaging lumbering contracts, perpetuate present mining interests, and confiscate private property by adverse condemnation.

The majority of people living in the Monterey Peninsula vigorously oppose development in the critical viewshed of Big Sur, with fair market compensation for affected property owners. The government, with 75,000 acres of federal land in the Los Padres National Forest and Big Sur, should assist funding without further acquisition.

Overwhelming local support for tough new coastal management controls, make it ludicrous to sugest cracks in the system could result in changes today in an area that has changed very little over the history of time. If there were serious threats to this policy by our elected officials, the community has demonstrated it has the power — and the concern to stop such actions.

Residents, who recently voted moratoriums on motel, hotel, apartment and resort complexes because of woefully inadequate roads, water and other resources, should realize a tremendous increase in accommodations will be needed to meet the needs of millions of new visitors that will be attracted to the newest "National Treasure" of the country.

Carmel, Monterey, Pacific Grove, Seaside, etc., will experience a surge of new development unlike anything to date. Imagine the discomfort of millions of tourists and local residents clamoring to get onto Highway 1 from Holman Highway, Ocean Avenue, Scenic Drive, Munras, Lighthouse, Fremont — and on and on and on — a situation that already exists.

Once again, politicians, tampering with nature under the guise of greater good for the majority of society, are promising voters something they already have — the right to peaceful enjoyment of a glorious primitive area. Swarms of new visitors, descending upon this fragile environment — competing and crowding — will destroy their wilderness experience as surely as it has in Yosemite.

The issue is not only a Big Sure problem but a very real and serious threat to the entire community and its visitors. The area is faced with the most dangerous "development" every proposed to change the nature and character of it forever.

The Wilson Bill will not create a Big Sur National Forest Scenic Area — but instead will create a Big Sure National Forest Disaster area to the detriment of everyone concerned. Only senators Wilson and Cranston — and future commercial entrepeneurs — stand to win with this proposal. Let's make sure they lose, instead!

The way it was

Dear Editor:

I read a few months back that the new Carmel City Council and mayor held its first session. I presume it was a victory celebration for their triumph over the "kill-joy mentality" of the city officials who preceded them.

My interest in these matters derives from the fact that, for a brief time in 1939 and 1940, I owned and edited The Pine Cone, under the kind and patient tutelage of the talented and lovely Marjory Lloyd and her stalwart Carmelite husband Francis Llewellyn Lloyd. (He regretted that he was not born in Carmel, but boasted that he had been conceived among the sand dunes on the beach when his mother and his McGill University professor father were on summer holiday from Montreal.)

Marjory, Frank and I put out a good newspaper, I think. I remember that we headlined on page one a story on the ordinance which proclaimed: "The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea is hereby determined to be primarily, essentially and predominantly a residential city wherein business and commerce have in the past, are now and are in the future subordinated to its residential character."

I recommend to present residents of Carmel a perusal of, if there is a copy of the Pine Cone of April 19, 1940, to be found in the city library, then presided over by the dedicated Miss Niles, an eloquent editorial written by Frank Lloyd and titled "Looking Ahead 25 Years."

Our issue of that was in observance of Bill Overstreet, who had started The Pine Cone just 25 years earlier.

Let me close by paying homage to Perry Newberry, John Catlin, Bill Bassett, Bert Heron, Argyle Campbell, Billy Hudson, Bob Norton, my mentors the Lloyds, and all those others who struggled for so long to keep Carmel the way it was supposed to be.

Carmel Red Cross sets blood drive for July 31

THE CARMEL-by-the-Sea chapter of the American Red Cross and Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula will conduct a "bloodmobile" July 31 for one day only.

The blood drive will be held from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Thursday, July 31 at 137 Park Walk in The Crossroads shopping center (directly behind the Holiday Hutch), according to Phil Gray, Red Cross publicity director.

Nurses will be on duty to assist in the blood drive, Gray said, and refreshments wi" be served.

"Informed people know that doctors, nurses and hospital employees are steadfast blood donors," Gray added. "There is an urgent need so please help someone by contributing."

For more information contact Gray at 624-6921.

District to review figures

Little hope seen for lifting of moratorium

By NANCY HILLS

THE MONTERY Peninsula Water Management District board will review Aug. 11 a water moratorium imposed on the city of Carmel and figures from California-American Water Co. that show the city had used 100.37 percent of its water allocation.

The board, however, is expected to reconfirm its suspension of all water meter connections in the city.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 11 at Monterey City Council Chambers.

The board is also scheduled to discuss how to apply the moratorium to projects already going through the city permit process and under what conditions the moratorium can be lifted. It is possible the board will allow meter connections for projects that use less water than the previous development on the site.

The Carmel City Council meanwhile is scheduled to discuss ways to bring Carmel back under the allocation and its response to the water board at its Aug. 5 meeting.

In a surprise move, the district board announced July 23 that Carmel-by-the-Sea had exceeded its water allocation and imposed a temporary moratorium on new water connections in the city.

The moratorium stops any construction in Carmel that increases water use at an existing building as well as projects that require new or additional water meters. The board also amended the moratorium rules and declared that even water connection permits in process will not be issued; the only permit affected is an application for Mayor Clint Eastwood's office/retail building. Architect George Brook-Kothlow filed the application at 4:30 p.m., two hours before the mortorium was imposed (see related story this issue.)

Last month, Carmel sent a letter to the water district requesting a review of its allocation and in a private meeting July 28 Eastwood and Dick Heuer, water board chairman, discussed the city's allocation and measures to reduce water usage in the village. Both characterized the meeting as "very constructive."

Eastwood said that the city is working on measures to reduce water use, including retrofitting of all hotels and motels in Carmel.

The city is looking into the possibility of purchasing low-flow fixtures for retrofitting and allowing the hostelries to purchase them and take three years to pay the city back. Currently, all businesses must be retrofitted by 1993.

"We want to keep everything as voluntary as possible," Eastwood said.

Eastwood said the city will continue pursuing a change in the allocation, but right now "it's the one we have and we will work with it."

In order to change the allocations, the other jurisdictions must agree to give up a part of theirs, Heuer said. Most already have plans for the water and are approaching their own allocation limits.

AT THE July 23 water board meeting, Bruce Buel, district manager, explained that the water allocations were developed in 1980 to divide the available water on the peninsula among individual cities and that portion of Monterey County within the district.

According to a water district ordinance, water connection permits must be suspended when a jurisdiction reaches 100 percent or more of its allocation.

Buel told the water board that figures from Cal-Am show Carmel used, in rounded numbers, 1,035 ac. ft. of water from July 1, 1985 to June 30, 1986, referred to as a "water year."

Carmel's yearly water allocation from the district is 1,031 ac. ft. so the city was 4 ac. ft. over its allocation as of June 30. In the previous water year, Carmel had used 1,009 ac. ft. or 98 percent of its allocation.

The Cal-Am figures show the residential district had the greatest increase, up 4 percent from last year. Single-family homes are up 18 ac. ft. and multi-family dwellings up 5 ac. ft. from last year's figures. Contrary to previously published reports, the commercial district was up by five ac. ft. The city government use was down by almost 2 ac. ft.

Carmel Staff Planner Brian Roseth said he believes the increase is due to an intensification of use in already existing homes. The ongoing enlarging and remodeling of small cottages could be a major factor in the change in Carmel's use, he said, and there are indications the number of people per household is increasing.

According to Buel, monthly figures recently released by Cal-Am show that from July to December 1985 water use was higher than last year and from January to June it was lower. It had been speculated by some people that the mayoral campaign in May and April, which brought many visitors to Carmel, had pushed water use up.

ALTHOUGH A confidential memo received by Carmel Planning Director Diane White on July 22, notified the city that Cal-Am figures showed Carmel over its allocation, the move to impose the actual moratorium came earlier than expected and caught the City of Carmel by surprise. Buel had sent the memo to all planning departments within the water district requesting they double-check their figures.

Heur, on the afternoon of July 23, requested the allocation item be added to the agenda for a meeting scheduled that evening. The meeting was originally designated a growth impact workshop for the proposed San Clemente Dam.

Heuer told the board and audience he requested the item be added because there could be a "rush for the pump house" after reports published in The Pine Cone speculated Carmel might be over its allocation and that the water board could impose a moratorium at its Aug. 11 meeting.

Heuer was concerned developers and property owners would attempt to submit water connection applications "prematurely" in order to avoid being caught by a possible moratorium in August.

Because it is a stop-gap measure, the blanket July 23 moratorium rules may be adjusted at the Aug. 11 meeting.

Before a building permit is issued in Carmel, the applicant's project must be reviewed and approved by the water district. Under the temporary moratorium, water district demand management coordinator Michael Ricker said he will not OK anyone's application if there is any question of a change in water use. The district is accepting applications but not processing them, he added.

The current permit suspension particularly affects:

- New developments, residences and public works that do not have a meter on site and have not received a water connection permit. Building a residence on a vacant, unmetered lot falls into this category.

- Remodels or additions to existing residences, commercial and public buildings that increase water use through the addition of water fixtures such as a new bathroom or sink. Also, Ricker said, an expansion of a commercial space where additional employees might be brought in falls in to this category.

- Any project that increases the number of commercial spaces or living quarters on a property with an existing water meter, even if the new project is planned to use the same or less water than previously used on the site.

The water district requires every apartment and individual business in the same building complex to have its own water meter. Any construction that increases residences or commercial spaces requires additional meters.

- New developments that increase water use on a metered property. New homes on vacant but metered sites are examples of this category.

Projects filed with the city that are expected to reduce water usage include Eastwood's office/retail building on San Carlos Street, the Little family's Sands/-Simpson's restaurant remodel on San Carlos Street and the Goold building remodel with

THOUGH THE residential district had the greatest increase in water usage in the past year, the commercial district also used 5 ac. ft. more than last year. The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District has imposed a water connection moratorium on Carmel until it is back under the 1031 ac. ft. allocation.

Is decision finally at hand on library annex?

By DAVID LELAND

IF THE library board of trustees has reached a policy decision, if the cost estimates for the proposed Pine Inn-city parking garage have arrived and if both sides can come to an agreement — the long-running saga of the proposed Harrison Memorial Library Annex may be resolved at this Tuesday's city council meeting.

The proposed annex, delayed from council vote last month due to lack of cost estimates by an ouutside consultant, will be one of several matters up for council consideration when it meets 4 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 5, at the Carmel Woman's Club at Ninth Avenue and San Carlos Street.

Other items on the agenda include:

- The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District's imposition of a water moratorium because Carmel has exceeded its water allocation. (See related story this issue.)

- Consideration of amending city ordinance which defines eating places, primarily those selling frozen dessert products such as ice cream cones.

- A possible amending of the city's municipal code which allows residents to obtain parking permits for downtown, enabling them to park two hours in a one-hour zone. Part-time residents owning houses in Carmel are attempting to secure permits when in town.

- A discussion of the city's parking policy. Councilman Jim Wright has requested this item be included on the agenda and will center on discussion of Pine Inn, senior citizen, proposed Sunset Center parking issues and a city ordinance calling for one parking space for every 1,000 square feet of commercial space.

- Consideration of the Grosvenors Inn's request for an amendment to the Carmel Land Use Plan.

- A year-round ban on fireworks. Currently they are only outlawed on Independence Day, July 4.

- Consider request from Craig McFarland asking for reconsideration of the council's decision to award an EIR contract for a seawall on his property.

- Hear request to pave portion of Second Avenue between North Casanova and Camino Real.

- Certification of Carmel Beach Restoration Phase II EIR.

AT ITS July 1 session, the council was forced to postpone action on the proposed joint Pine Inn-city parking garage when the consultant's cost estimates had not arrived in time for an agreement to be developed by the two sides.

With latest figures showing the 96-space garage cost reaching $1.25 million, the job at hand has been to decide how much will the city and the Pine Inn contribute to construction costs.

After a month of negotiations, a report is due at Tuesday's meeting.

The parking garage is important because the proposed $905,000 library annex would be developed on top of the garage at the northwest corner of Lincoln Street and Sixth Avenue.

With the library board of trustees scheduled to vote on a policy decision today (July 31) at 4 p.m in the council chambers, another stumbling block will be removed from the council's path.

Last month, four council members deferred from reaching a consensus on the proposed library annex until the library board of trustees had reached a decision.

The council is also scheduled to receive a recommendation from the planning commission on its findings regarding the Carmel Beach Restoration Phase II EIR.

To no ones suprise, the planning commission's primary concern is the displacement of parking along Scenic Road from Eighth Avenue to the south city limits.

One example of the parking problem illustrated in the EIR states that if the project is constructed as planned, there would only be seven parking spaces between 12th and 13th streets — down from 24, or a loss of 71 percent.

With this in mind, the planning commission will recommend approval of the Phase II EIR and propose a reevaluation of the entire Beach Restoration Project, according to Brian Roseth, staff planner.

"We need to amend the design of the project," Roseth said. He added that a task force needs to be appointed to look at alternatives to the parking problem — if a viable solution cannot be found, the Beach Restoration Project should be abandoned.

In any event, Roseth said, the EIR should be approved. "To keep coming back to this (EIR) is like spinning your wheels," he said.

Cranston aides indicate softening on Big Sur

publically announced ally so far is the Wilderness Society, a national organization dedicated to the preservation of the environment.

"I am pleased that the subcommittee is proceeding to consider my legislation, which will increase environmental protections for the Los Padres National Forest Service lands, in Big Sur," Wilson said in a prepared statement.

"There are many misunderstandings about the proposed legislation and the hearing will allow for further discussion on the need for certain federal protections of this national treasure."

Wilson stressed that a key feature of his plan is to protect federal lands from "exploitation."

"Since most of the land in the Big Sur area is already owned by the National Forest Service, it is only reasonable that the federal government has a role in the management of federal lands to ensure the protections are consistent with their scenic value and the provisions of the county's land use plan," Wilson said.

WILSON'S LEGISLATION basically:

• Designates Big Sur as a National Forest Scenic Area with boundaries from Mal Paso Creek to the north, San Luis Obispo County to the south and the Coastal Commission Zone to the east.

• Places Big Sur under the jurisdiction of the United States Secretary of Agriculture. A paid "Big Sur Coast Trust" board will be established to raise funds for land acquisition. Another nine-member advisory committee representing local interests also would be created.

• Stipulates that "the Secretary of Agriculture will not have the authority to acquire land by condemnation as long as the county's Big Sur coast land use plan remains intact.

"If the land use controls contained in the plan are significantly weakened either by court action or amendments to the plan approved by the county or coastal commission the secretary will be allowed to invoke condemnation authority to acquire any parcel of land threatened with development contrary to the values of the Big Sur coast."

• Provides for $500,000 in seed money to implement the program.

Wilson's primary arguments in supporting his bill are that:

• The legislation provides another layer of protection for the scenic Big Sur coast.

• The financially-strapped county needs assistance to help purchase scenic lands for permanent open space.

• A shift in county government could lead to a more pro-development attitude for the coast.

• Off-shore oil drilling along the Big Sur coast and mining and timbering activities inland will be greatly restricted.

HOW TO counter Wilson's arguments was a major focal point of the Friends of the Big Sur Coast as members convened for a day-long strategy and tactics session Monday morning at the Capitol Hill hotel, just a 10-minute walk in the stifling Washington humidity to the Senate offices.

Jim Josoff, president of the Friends, outlined key points the lobbyists wanted to make:

• It is not a property rights issue. "The bottom line for all of us is the protection of the environment. It is not property rights," Josoff said. "Nobody cares about property rights in Washington. In history it doesn't matter...the final line is how this land is protected for future generations." However, the group does fear the power of the Secretary of Agriculture or his designee to condemn private lands.

• The "pave and save" mentality. Josoff said members should stress the effects more tourists will have on the environment and how government usually winds up building costly facilities to meet visitor demands.

• The future. Wilson has said his bill will not result in condemnation of public lands, but Josoff argues that there are often several follow-up pieces of legislation and amendments that sometime go beyond the original intent. In addition to changes in the bill itself, there is a chance that pro-development legislators and secretaries of agriculture will follow. Wilson proposed that boards of supervisors change and that's why the measure is necessary.

In rebuttal, Josoff quotes Supervisor Strasser Kauffman as saying, "Yes, that's true. Boards of supervisors do change, coastal commissioners do change, but it's also true that secretaries of agriculture change and senators change. The one thing that remains constant is the people of Big Sur."

• Businesses are opposed. Although one out of every two adults in Big Sur depend on tourists for their livelihood, all local chambers of commerce and the central coast motel owners oppose the bill.

• The effect on local communities, especially traffic in Carmel and Monterey which already experience problems because of the tourist influx. Another problem is water; a temporary building moratorium already is in place in Carmel because the city exceeded its water allocation.

• The strength of the Coastal Act and Big Sur Land Use Plan.

• Money. "Talk about the state of finances," Josoff advised. "The federal government can't afford to take care of the land it has."

• That the coastal partnership accomplishes Wilson's intent without federal legislation.

• History. That various efforts to federalize Big Sur have failed six times since 1979. "We call Wilson, Messiah Number Seven," Josoff said. "How many times do we have to fight this?"

PRIOR TO detailing the lobbying tactics the Friends had a lengthy informational discussion on issues ranging from the cash-short forest service to Mono Lake — the first California property designated as a National Scenic Area.

Playing numbers, especially with vote-conscious politicians, Josoff claims that there are 575,000 Californians opposed to Wilson's measure. Josoff arrived at the figure by calculating the population represented by the numerous agencies on record in opposing the bill. These agencies include the counties of Monterey and San Luis Obispo, the California State Grange, the County Republican and Democratic Central Committees, and the mayors of all of the cities on the Monterey Peninsula.

Pushing the impact of dollars, the Friends was told that there is $24,000 available this year to maintain 1,500 miles of trails in the entire Los Padres National Forest. In the Big Sur area of the forest, $3,000 has been set aside to maintain just 30 of its 395 miles of trails.

"The important thing to remember is that in 10 years the trails have not been maintained because they don't have the money," Josoff said.

Pat Chamberlain, a CHP officer and chief of the Big Sur Volunteer Fire Brigade, raised concerns about the lack of rangers. He said there is only one for Big Sur in the Monterey ranger district.

Because of work force shortages, the forest service does not issue permits and it's impossible to check when a hiker is overdue. Sometimes the $3.26-per-hour clerks keep notes "under the table," but nothing is official, Chamberlain said.

This hampers authorities in finding out soon when a hiker has been lost. "Several" hikers have been lost recently, and two "that we know of never came out," Chamberlain said.

Of the condemnation issue, the Friends fear that vague wording will easily allow "a taking" of private property.

Josoff recalled one incident where a resident of Yosemite lost his home when he added a bathroom.

Perlmutter pointed out that under the present wording of the measure, the federal government could take control of property when development is proposed and not wait to see if the plans are approved by the county and coastal commission.

"If Jim Hill (El Sur Ranch) made his proposal as he did last year, it would be substantial grounds for the secretary to condemn the land," Perlmutter said.

Mike Caplin added that a "hostile" supervisor or coastal commissioner could purposely trigger a federal takeover by merely proposing changes to the Big Sur Land Use Plan.

JOSOFF SAID the group must make the point that "we want no bill at all." He claims that the measure establishing the Blue Ridge National Parkway had follow-up legislation numbering six bills. And there also is "overlay legislation" — measures directed at one area but affecting all federal properties, such as buffer zones between the scenic area and private development.

Sherry Allen also presented a brief report on her conversations with Mono Lake residents and their reaction to federalization.

"It's so frightening I just couldn't believe the problems Mono Lake is having," Allen said.

She said "what's really scary" is that residents were told the government would not have funds available for 10 years to buy out private property. And residents could only "exchange with sites" outside the scenic area. In addition, only the land is valued by the government. Homes and improvements are not part of the assessment, Allen said.

Allen added that the government plans to buld a $2 million visitors' complex at Mono Lake. Since suitable land was unavailable inside the scenic area, the government just extended the boundaries. Opponents of Wilson's bill consistently express fears over the power of the Secretary of Agriculture to arbitrarily alter boundaries.

U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston's top aide Roy Greenaway does not believe that the House of Representatives will support the Wilson bill as long as Rep. Leon Panetta of Carmel Valley remains opposed. 'It won't go anywhere unless Leon wants it,' he said.

Visitors also increased at Mono Lake after the National Scenic Areas designation, Allen reported. The Friends insist that any appreciable increase in visitors will destroy the fragile environment of Big Sur.

"The people are frustrated. They feel trapped. They feel helpless," Allen said.

Contacted by the Friends Tuesday, Cranston's office appeared reluctant to schedule a personal interview with the senator. Appointments Secretary Mary Lou McNeely said, "He knows your points already...It would take an hour and he doesn't have five minutes."

Wilson not backing down on Big Sur federalization

By MICHAEL GARDNER

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Sen. Pete Wilson, citing concerns about developmental pressures caused by a "staggering increase in population in the state" reiterated that he will continue to press for his bill to federalize Big Sur.

Wilson briefly met with about 20 members of the Friends of the Big Sur Coast in his office at 2 p.m. Washington time Wednesday, less than a day before a Senate subcommittee will conduct a hearing on the measure.

The Republican senator from California noted, "my concern is, whether we like it or not, the one change that is virtually assured is the population of California is reaching staggering numbers." Wilson predicts that there will be 40 million Californians and Los Angeles will be larger than New York City by the turn of the century.

This population surge will lead to more development pressures throughout the coastal regions, Wilson said. "The pressures for development in all of the coastal areas of California are going to be enormous," the senator said.

Wilson believes federal protection from these development pressures is the most effective tool in preserving Big Sur, which he calls "a national treasure"

When meeting with the senator, albeit for about eight minutes, members of the Friends of the Big Sur Coast did have an opportunity to review their concerns with Wilson in person.

As Friends President Jim Josoff said, "Senator, I guess what we're saying is this bill will destroy what you're trying to save."

After the quick session, Wilson aide Jim Burroughs met with Friends Vice President Alan Perlmutter to discuss the issues. Burroughs told The Pine Cone that Wilson has no intention of withdrawing the bill, as was rumored earlier this week. (See related story page 1).

Water district manager to speak on water projections

A SCIENTIFIC approach to water resource management and prediction will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 6 at the Seaside City Council Chambers, 440 Harcourt Ave.

Darby Fuerst, Monterey Peninsula Water Management District project manager, will speak on the computer simulation model, which mathematically represents the physical resource system in the district.

One benefit of using the simulation model would be to project water demand. For example, the model can predict how well projected water demand or required fishery flows would be met in the year 2020 in a drought situation.

Using his calibrated model, Fuerst hopes to provide a powerful predictive tool to answer many "what if" questions.

BEHIND THE LINES

BY MICHAEL GARDNER

Water, water everywhere?

I FEEL guilty today.

You see, I woke up and flushed my seven-gallon toilet twice, ran the hot water in the sink to warm up the Barbersol, kept the flow going while brushing my teeth and then took a 30-minute shower.

After doing the dishes with running rinse water, I turned on the sprinkler for half an hour so that my lawn would resemble a putting green rather than a hayfield.

Off to work, I stopped at the greasy spoon for a cup of coffee and asked for a glass of water as a complement.

Despite a personal appearance at the Wednesday night water district meeting (see related stories, this issue), I am still a water waster. Guilty as charged.

And so is just about everyone who has read this far.

We have forgotten the drought's 50-gallon-a-day legacy and now continue wasting water.

Wary of the future, two years ago the city of Carmel came down hard, and rightfully so I might add, on commercial use of water.

However, citizens long have been ignoring the warning signs. Residential use has gone up tremendously over the years while commercial consumption has remained relatively stable despite numerous building projects.

So now it's too late. The moratorium on new water meters is a foregone conclusion. And for Carmel to get back under its water allocation, the city will have to take immediate steps not just in the commercial zone, but restrict residential use as well.

It won't be a surprise to see further residential water use controls seriously considered by the council, including such previously taboo subjects as restrictions on washing cars, watering lawns and in the worst-case scenario, a cap on water use much like the drought days.

It's time to pay the piper. When you bounce a check, the bill is 10 bucks. So too is it with water.

Oh, of course the city will scream that the water allocation is unfair. Annually for the past five years the Carmel City Council has routinely asked for an increase in its water allocation and every year the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District just as routinely turns down said request.

If you honestly think that the other water district directors will part with any portion of their coveted water allocation, then give me a call — I have some lots in Arizona and a bridge in Brooklyn you may be interested in.

LET'S TAKE a glance at a few of the board members and you'll know why I'm pessimistic about Carmel receiving any more water in the foreseeable future.

Nick Lombardo of Carmel Valley does not have a pro-environment reputation. Any development in the Valley needs water. As an aside, Lombardo in the past tried to get a hotel approved for his Rancho Canada. Don't think those plans are scrapped.

Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman, who represents the Fifth District, has enough worries with the county's allocation not able to meet its own needs based on a priority system.

Billy DeBerry has to look out for Seaside and its 15-story hotel. Ditto for David Pendergrass whose Sand City has big plans for the 200-plus room Sterling environmental center.

Need I say more?

MORE WATER EDITORIALIZING

The county's allottment is 6,501 ac. ft. Its use was 5,860.42 ac. ft. That leaves 640.58 left to us. The county's internal system sets aside 662.77 ac. ft. of water in four priority areas.

The question developers of projects in the priority four program (Odello, Quail Lodge and High Meadow) will have to ask is how this affects them. The question I ask is whether supervisors will take another look at the situation and adjust their priorities in light of these recent developments.

If you count the unbuilt projects, the county exceeds its water allocation by 22 ac. ft. and does not have any reserve as a buffer. Poppy Hills golf course wasn't even open last year, nor was the 100-room Carmel Valley Ranch hotel now under construction.

Before you start screaming at Staff Planner Brian Roseth, just remember that he was the architect of the city's two-year-old conservation program.

If it hadn't been for his foresight — coupled with approval by the past council — commercial water use probably would have been dramatically increased. That, my friends, would have meant even bigger trouble for Carmel.

The only regret is that the city did not insist on tight residential water restrictions, still pinning their hopes on an increased allocation.

Commercial water users probably mad at Brian for his tough stand on water should look at what could have happened and then say thanks.

Expect anxious looks to the sanitary district for its water reclamation plant, which could free hundreds of acre feet of water for residential use since irrigation of golf courses could be accomplished with reclaimed water.

That project, however, is years down the road.

Prediction for Aug. 11: the water board will listen attentively to Carmel's request for allowing water meters to those projects in the mill that will consume less water than the previous use.

But if directors are serious about reducing water use rather than maintaining a status quo, don't expect any bending of the rules.

THE CLINT WATCH

Saturday afternoon at the office, getting last minute stories together before Washington D.C. vacation time when the phone rings, interrupting my salami sandwich.

It's Mayor Clint Eastwood. Boy, was I lucky! I thought I'd have to go through a whole column without writing about him. I got my Clint fix!

The news is that the Riverside Press-Enterprise filed a story with Associated Press claiming that Clint will endorse Gov. George Deukmejian's bid for a second term. That would be no surprise since Clint is as Republican as the Kennedys are Democrat.

The report partially states: "Clint Eastwood wants to make Gov. Deukmejian's day." (How's that for an innovative, never-before-seen lead?)

"No ordinary politician, the Carmel-by-the-Sea Mayor and tough-guy actor wants to make the biggest splash possible when he endorses Deukmejian's re-election later this year. His representatives have been talking with Deukmejian's campaign about when and how to make the endorsement."

The story continues to quote Clint's administrative aide Sue Hutchinson as saying, "He's very supportive of the governor. In terms of how this will be done; I'm not sure."

Clint was unavailable for comment, the story added.

But this got our photographer, Holly McFarland, to thinking. With a national association of broadcasters meeting in Monterey to hear Deukmejian and Bradley debate, why not announce it then?

So we asked. Afraid Clint didn't take advantage of the opportunity. No endorsement came.

Clint's words? "I've had no conversations with Mr. Deukmejian. I've had no conversations with any of these politicans...I'm going to be working on Carmel business. That's going to be my sole interest. I've made no commitments."

Using an "oval-shaped projectile," to compute "CEQA figures open to interpretation following complete EIS analysis of the impacts of said numerals on the LUP," there will be "an intra-agency staff development program where mutual cooperation in obtaining a satisfactory end product is the primary objective."

In English, my friends, rumor is that the bureaucrats from the water district have challenged Carmel city hall staff to an athletic contest of either softball or volleyball.

If the city wins, the reward will be a gallon of water; while the water district demands a parking space as its spoil.

SERIOUS SITUATION

Several tests of Carmel's water supply, made by men who are entirely competent, and reported to the Board of Trustees in open meeting, discloses a most serious state of affairs. Our water mains will not stand a strain sufficient to deliver a volume of water which may be required at any time to preserve Carmel from a fire disaster.

Our city fathers should exert sufficient official pressure on the water supply corporation to speedily insure the installation of water conductors large enough and strong enough to deliver water in quantity and pressure to cope with any fire.

ALAN WILLIAMS wants the city to get serious about the parking problems. As a little shove in that direction, he advances a plan for eight parking sites scattered throughout town. (Michael Gardner photo.)

Carmel man wants to steer city into a parking plan

By MICHAEL GARDNER

ALAN WILLIAMS has a plan. It's a parking plan to be specific. To be accurate, it's a plan to get the city talking about parking.

Not that the city hasn't been talking about parking; the problem is that there's too much talk and too little action.

With a new administration in office and a revised Carmel General Plan in the works, Williams hopes to steer the city into serious discussions on the parking issue by proposing study of eight different sites throughout the city that culmulatively would provide about 2,000 spaces and cost millions.

The plans call for underground parking to be developed in conjunction with building projects. The most obvious site Williams proposes is the north lot at Sunset Center; the least likely is on top of a new public works facility.

Williams points out that his plans call for landscaped garages with very little visual impact on the surrounding neighborhoods.

"When I talk about parking, I am not talking about the kind of parking you see in Monterey...It's buried. It's out of sight — that's consistent with the general plan policy of getting parking off the streets, out of sight."

And with each new space created, Williams would like to see an equal number removed from the public streets. To accomplish this, he proposes to use the east side of downtown streets for truck parking only.

The proposal will be presented to the General Plan Advisory Committee as part of its discussions of the circulation element, said Williams, one of the five members.

"Basically what we're looking for, of course, is to make the circulation element of the general plan more efficient and consummate recommendations that will lead to solutions in lieu of more dialogue and years of procrastination," Williams said.

Williams stresses that the parking proposal is not designed to "stir controversy" nor should it be construed that he favors developing all eight sites.

"We're not proposing to put parking on all the sites. We're not trying to create 2,000 more spaces," he explained. "These are just suggestions. These are just proposed solutions. The economic viability must be studied."

According to Williams, scattering parking throughout the city would "open the town for circulation."

WILLIAMS HAS proposed half a dozen potential sites, but preferred to identify just six locations because he has not had a chance to talk to the owners of two properties.

The sites were selected based on potential economic viability and slope because the lots would be underground. The six proposed sites are:

- Sunset Center, where Williams sees a chance for up to 300 spaces on two levels and as many as 450 parking slots with a three-level garage.
- The Harrison Memorial Library annex property, which when coupled with a Pine Inn project, could produce up to 200 spaces in a two-level garage on the northwest corner of Lincoln Street and Sixth Avenue.
- The proposed senior citizen housing project on Dolores Street now used as a temporary surface parking lot while the city studies plans for an low-cost apartment complex. Williams predicts that a 40-space underground garage could be developed in conjunction with any senior housing program.
- The lower lumber yard on the west side of Junipero Avenue between Fourth and Third avenues. Williams, who represents owner Tom Handley in attempts to develop the site, sees the possibility for three levels of parking there with a total of 120 spaces.
- The upper lumber yard directly across Junipero Avenue and also between Fourth and Third avenues. Handley and Williams also are working on development plans for this site. Williams proposes three levels with 400 parking spaces.
- The Carmel Youth Center property, a complicated plan that would result in 50 spaces on the southeast corner of Junipero and Fourth avenues.

In explaining the last site, Williams said the plan would be to put the youth center on top of the public works building. That facility had been constructed to allow for city offices on the second story, but the council opted to remain on Monte Verde Street.

Public works then would be expanded into the youth center site and parking would be provided there for city employees and the heavy machinery.

That project would be cheaper than often-discussed plans to buy land outside the city for the public works department, Williams believes.

"We could do all that and provide parking with a lot less money than moving public works," he said.

The General Plan Advisory Committee will review Williams' plan and then decide whether to incorporate all or part of it in recommendations to the planning commission. The committee is advisory in nature and has no authority to implement its proposals.

Council bows to pressure, moves meeting location

By DAVID LELAND

DON'T LOOK for next Tuesday's Carmel City Council meeting in the usual place. For the next two months, and possibly more, the meetings will be held at the Carmel Woman's Club at the corner San Carlos Street and Ninth Avenue.

Responding to complaints of insufficient space for local residents to have a voice at its meetings, the council unanimously agreed in a special session July 28 to try the new location in August and September.

Monday's 10-minute meeting hardly resembled the usual monthly marathon extravaganzas, with only a dozen people scattered throughout the chambers observing the action.

Since the April election of Mayor Clint Eastwood, it has not been uncommon for more than 200 people to try and squeeze into the tiny council chambers, which only holds 55 spectators. Lines sometimes stretched down the block, with some persistent people waiting up to two hours to get a glimpse of Carmel's famous mayor.

At the July 1 meeting the city admitted Carmel residents first and also set aside seats for those wanting to address a particular agenda item. In addition, a video monitor and seating were available in the patio adjoining city hall. Apparently these attempts were unsuccessful in alleviating the problem.

It's hoped the new facility with its main hall holding about 200 seats, will take care of this problem, according to Councilman Bob Fischer, who suggested the move to the council. There is also an adjoining room with an additional 50 seats if needed.

Fischer said the city will absorb the cost of the move, with the daily rent of $200 coming from the council's Facility Improvement-Municipal Development Services Fund.

While the move has only been slated for two months, Fischer said they were "testing the waters," and would re-evaluate the matter when the summer has ended and tourism waned.

Also at Monday's meeting, the council voted unanimously, with Mayor Eastwood abstaining, to send a letter to the Senate Subcommittee on Public Lands, Reserved Water and Resource Conservation reaffirming the city's position opposing U.S. Sen. Pete Wilson's bill to federalize the Big Sur Coast.

Eastwood abstained on advice of City Atty. Don Freeman because the mayor owns property in the area.

Vacationing City Councilman James Wright was absent from the meeting.

Softball tournament organizers seek host families for players

By DAVID LELAND

WHILE THERE are only 10 players on a girl's softball team, Carmel Youth Baseball organizers are looking for "designated hitters" to add financial and housing support for the upcoming Girl's Softball Tournament and a "road trip" to Southern California.

The softball tournament, to be held Friday, Saturday, Sunday, Aug. 8, 9, 10, at Larson Field just off Rio Road, is for girls under 16 and will wrap up this year's play locally.

With teams coming from as far away as San Diego, housing will be needed for members of at least two of the teams.

Other cities participating in the tournament are Monterey, Pacific Grove, Sunnyvale and Santa Cruz. Hosting the series are the Carmel-Monterey Bandits.

All teams entering will be guaranteed a specific number of games based on the total number of teams in the tournament. On the final day, the top two teams will play a single elimination championship.

The tournament will be a warm up for the Bandits, who are scheduled to travel to San Diego at the end of August to enter in the Western States Labor Day Tournament.

Financial support is needed for the Bandits trip south; any individual or organization wishing to contribute may call Jerry Pullen at 625-1091 or write to: Bandits, P.O. Box 22916, Carmel, CA 93922.

Planners sweet on ice cream, OK revisions

By NANCY HILLS

THE CARMEL Planning Commission treated Carmel to a revised ice cream ordinance, but jewelers who came to protest a separate agenda item did not find the commission's rulings so sweet.

The ice cream ordinance, designed to make "frozen food" dessert places easier to approve, is scheduled for review by the Carmel City Council at its regular meeting Aug. 5.

Additionally, the commission approved a new jewelry store on San Carlos Street despite the protests of numerous Carmel jewelers; a candy factory and shop in the Paradise Building; denied the use of an outdoor display; extended the hours of the Nature Company; and granted a use permit for an art gallery/studio on Lincoln Street.

The long-awaited ice cream ordinance went another round with the planning commission and came out with a few changes and a very small audience.

"Where's the national news media?" acting-chairman Olof Dahlstrand questioned while looking out on only two or three attendees at city hall.

Whether or not ice cream cones would be allowed in new businesses in Carmel has received national attention in the past year, especially during the heated city council election.

The ordinance, drafted by members of the previous commission, was reviewed by the city council and sent back to the commission with suggested changes in seating requirements and allowed zoning.

This time around the commission removed a provision requiring that 60 percent of the business be seated service and also allows frozen food places in the service/commercial zone.

That will allow ice cream parlors almost a half a block past the post office toward Fourth Avenue on Dolores, San Carlos and Mission Streets. On the south side of Ocean Avenue, they would be allowed a half a block down Dolores and San Carlos streets from Seventh Avenue and two lots south on the south side of Mission Street.

The proposed ordinance creates a subcategory for places that serve frozen dessert products —, defined as ice cream, gelato, freezes, ices, frozen yogurt and frozen custards — within the city restaurant code. That code prohibits primarily takeout eating places and the sale of uncovered takeout foods.

The new ordinance specifically identifies ice cream cones as a permitted takeout food and simply removes the requirement that the business not be primarily takeout. It also mandates the business is responsible for cleanup in the surrounding area and that lines of people waiting not intrude on sidewalks.

Currently, only Michael Lajigian of Chocolate Dreams on Ocean Avenue has applied to sell gelato. Richard Pepe is purchasing Wishart's Bakery, also on Ocean Avenue and plans to replace the bakery with an ice cream parlor.

Michael Montana applied for an ice cream parlor, also in Wishart's, however, Pepe won the right in a lawsuit to purchase the bakery.

Before the ordinance goes into effect, the city council must approve it and present it at two meetings. It is scheduled for review at the Aug. 5 city council meeting.

THE AUDIENCE was meager for the ice cream issue but not for a jewelry store application by James and Theresa Genone. The store would replace the Carmel Barber Shop on San Carlos Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues.

Jewelers from many different Carmel stores showed up to oppose the application on the grounds there are too many jewelry stores in Carmel already. A study by Denise Duffy & Associates for the City of Carmel states there were 30 jewelry stores in the village in 1985, a 170 percent increase since 1975.

Steven Kaufman, owner of Ladyfingers Jewelry on Lincoln Street, told the board "If there was ever a situation coming before the commissioners regulating a balance and mix of uses, this is it."

Other jewelers addressed the board on the difficulty of competing and the quality of jewelry stores in town.

Dahlstrand, however, told the jewelers present that alleviating competition was neither a concern or a legal responsibility of the planning commission. When asked if that was correct, City Atty. Don Freeman confirmed Dahlstrand's position.

The commission unanimously approved the application.

In other matters, the commission:

• Amended the recently-opened Nature Company's use permit to allow the store to remain open until 9 p.m. on weekdays.

The commissioners determined that the store, located on Ocean Avenue near Mission Street, was far enough away from any residences that it would not create a disturbance. The store's merchandise, also, was of interest to residents that work until 5 p.m. and might want to visit the store. The extension of hours from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. was unanimously granted.

• Denied an application by Christine Kolisch to use an outdoor display. Kolisch explained she owned Cheppu, a shop which sells local artifacts and antiques from the Himalayas and is located behind Em Le's on Dolores Street.

Because of its hidden location, the shop is not visible from the sidewalk or street. Kolisch explained she attracted enough customers only when she displayed a mannequin consisting of a dance mask and antique robe out in the courtyard. It had been described by other businesses as a "voodoo doll."

Without naming the businesses, Kolisch cited other outdoor displays she had observed in the village. Planning Director Diane White explained those displays were not legal either.

The commission decided, however, that outdoor displays were prohibited by ordinance and the mannequin was out of character for Carmel. The vote to deny the application was unanimous.

• Approved Paul Laub's use permit application for a candy factory and shop in the Paradise Mall on the corner of Ocean Avenue and Dolores Street.

Extensive resurfacing to take place on county streets

DOZENS OF areas of Monterey County, including Carmel Valley, Carmel Views and Carmel Knolls, have been scheduled for street resurfacing, a project that started July 16.

The Sacramento-based firm of California Pavement Maintenance Co. (CPM CO) has been contracted by the county to resurface streets for a two-month period.

Residents in the affected areas will be notified 48 hours in advance of any work. Streets will also be posted 24 hours in advance.

Eastwood's application was 'just coincidence'

By MICHAEL GARDNER

ARCHITECT George Brook-Kothlow says that it was "just a coincidence" when he filed an application for a water meter permit for Mayor Clint Eastwood's building application only 90 minutes after the city learned of a pending emergency moratorium.

The timing of Brook-Kothlow's application was the subject of not very disguised criticism from the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District Board of Directors during a July 23 special meeting that ended with a unanimous emergency temporary ban on new water meter connections in Carmel.

ARCHITECT GEORGE Brook-Kothlow denied having inside information on the pending moratorium on water connection permits in Carmel when he filed Mayor Clint Eastwood's application 90 minutes after the city was notified that the ban would be discussed that night, July 23.

Directors will consider a formal moratorium — the result of Carmel being over its water allocation — at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 11 at Monterey City Hall. (See related story, this issue.)

During the July 23 session, water board Chairman Dick Heuer said that "I think the timing speaks for itself" and talked about how an applicant had "privileged access to the upcoming moratorium."

Directors originally had before them a resolution that would have placed a ban on all new water connection permits after 6 p.m. Wednesday, July 23.

The city of Carmel was notified at about 3 p.m. that day of the pending moratorium and Brook-Kothlow submitted the application for Eastwood's building at about 4:30 p.m.

In response to Brook-Kothlow's application, the moratorium was rewritten to state that all "pending" applications will not be processed.

According to Heuer, Eastwood's two-story retail and office complex was the only project pending before the district.

"The fact that an application was filed at 4:30 caused the board concern whether a leak or some privileged information may have stimulated the application," added water district General Manager Bruce Buel.

Eastwood was in Southern California that day working on his new film Heartbreak Ridge.

Reached by telephone in Burbank, Eastwood said that Heuer's comments are "completely out of line."

"The application was based on the article in the Pine Cone...I had no consultations with George except subsequent to the application," Eastwood explained. "We haven't changed our schedule one bit."

The next morning Brook-Kothlow said he was not contacted by the city and told of the pending moratorium.

Brook-Kothlow said the impetus for filing the project was a story in the July 17 Carmel Pine Cone that reported the city probably would exceed its water allocation.

"It was in the Pine Cone last Thursday. It seemed in light of that we should file," Brook-Kothlow said.

BROOK-KOTHLOW pointed out that Eastwood's project was nearly ready for submission a couple of months ago, but the development was postponed until after the heavy summer tourist season.

"Clint delayed the project so there wouldn't be more congestion in the community," he said.

Brook-Kothlow said that he talked to Michael Ricker, district demand management coordinator, on July 21, two days before the moratorium was ordered.

Sue Hutchinson, administrative aide to Eastwood, also discounted the innuendos that inside information was used to try and push through Eastwood's project.

"Absolutely, positively untrue," she said. "I haven't talked to George for three weeks."

Hutchinson said she did not hear of the pending moratorium until Heuer called her in the late afternoon of July 23.

"I couldn't hardly tip him off because I wasn't tipped," said Hutchinson. "I had absolutely no knowledge of anything. It certainly wasn't me and it certainly wasn't Clint."

During a conversation July 24, Heuer softened his stance toward the timing of Brook-Kothlow's application.

Asked whether Brook-Kothlow was tipped, Heuer responded, "I have no idea. Obviously the chronology is, you know, embarrassing to Mr. Eastwood.

"I would certainly hope and expect it was a coincidence. The architect said it was. I would not think otherwise."

It was Heuer who pushed for the emergency moratorium following a chain of events that included a confidential memo to planning directors of the cities.

California-American Water Co. last year had prematurely released erroneous water figures that embarrassed the company and district.

To avoid that problem this year, only water use figures for the entire service area were released. Use by individual cities was detailed in confidential memos to planning directors, who were to check the accuracy of the figures prior to a public release date of July 31.

Asked why the need for secrecy, Heuer replied, "Because we wanted the figures to be evaluated and interpreted before they were splashed all over the newspapers."

However, simple math indicated that Carmel would exceed its allocation if the city increased at the same percentage as the entire Cal-Am service area.

"The fact Carmel was over became a trigger for policy action," Heuer said.

Fearful that a "rush" on water connection permit applications would "worsen" Carmel's situation, Heuer called fellow directors on July 22 and asked whether the moratorium issue should be placed on the agenda for the following night's workshop session.

After checking with Buel and Cal-Am, Heuer chose to place the moratorium issue on the agenda at 1 p.m. Wednesday., July 23.

At 3 p.m. Carmel was notified of the pending moratorium. Ninety minutes later, Brook-Kothlow submitted the Eastwood application. At 9 p.m. the emergency moratorium was enacted.

It's back to square one for Mahroom development

By DAVID LELAND

IF THE Monterey County Board of Supervisors concurs with the county planning commission's recommendation on the proposed Mahroom project when it meets Aug. 5, it could be back to square one for the developer.

Even though county supervisors agreed at last month's meeting to limit the development to 18 units, instead of the proposed 36, county planners say that isn't how it works.

"We are recommending to deny approval of the tenative map as it is inconsistent with the county's general plan," said Wes Arvig, county planner. Arvig was referring to the 36-unit complex submitted for an EIR.

Once a development plan is submitted it cannot be modified at will, said Robert Slimmon, county planning director. The only way to change it is to reapply for a permit with the county.

The Mahrooms will wait until after next Tuesday's meeting before revising any strategy according to their attorney, Brian Finnigan.

But the Mahrooms have already filed suit in Monterey County Superior Court asking for a declaration. Finningan said they are asking the court to rule the Mahroom's application was in accordance with the general plan when it was filed, and only became illegal upon continued delays from county officials. The Mahrooms charge that the county delayed their project while the general plan was being changed.

Another possibility, he said, would be to reapply for the development with different building priorities.

The board of supervisors meets Tuesday, Aug. 5 at the county courthouse in Salinas.

Decision could be reached on proposed library annex

BOTH SIDES of the proverbial fence will be watching the Library Board of Trustees today to see if its members adapt a policy statement regarding the proposed Harrison Memorial Library Annex.

The 4 p.m. meeting Thursday, July 31 in the city council chambers is bound to have impact on the council's vote on the annex Aug. 5, with Mayor Clint Eastwood and four council members saying recently they wanted the opinion of the library board before they made a decision.

It appears to be anybody's guess which way the board will end up voting. Trustees Tom Duffy and George Rommel could go either way, while new library trustees Selden Smith and John Kennedy have never voted on the annex. Only board president Jack Billwiller has taken a firm pro-annex stand.

In other library board business, newly-appointed trustees Smith and Kennedy will be officially sworn into office at today's meeting.

CHS hoop standouts to play in Aug. 1 All-Star game

TWO CARMEL High basketball standouts will be among the players to compete in the inaugural Kiwanis All-Star Basketball Classic slated for Aug. 1 at Hartnell College in Salinas.

Charis McGaughy and Doug Stevenson, seniors at Carmel High last year, will compete in the girls' and boys' games respectively at the first-ever contest. The girls' game starts at 6:30 p.m. with the boys to follow at 8, Friday, Aug. 1 at the Hartnell College gymnasium.

Proceeds of the game, which is intended to be an annual event, will benefit local high school basketball programs.

"The game came about as a result of a definite need in this area for this kind of activity," said Alan Miller, Salinas Kiwanis first vice president. The event should prove to be "the highlight of high school basketbal this year," he added.

Players — 12 to each team, 48 in all — were selected from the Monterey Bay League, the Mission Trail Athletic League, and Santa Cruz County Athletic League. Funding for the game was supplied by the host Salinas Kiwanis Club.

Also competing in the boys' game will be Mike Kirch and Sharif Ibrahim of Robert Louis Stevenson School.

A banquet honoring the All-Stars will be held starting at 7 p.m. Thursday, July 31 at the Elks Lodge in Salinas. Featured speaker for the evening will be Lynn Nance, head basketball coach at St. Mary's College in Moraga. The public is invited to attend the banquet. Cost is $10 per person.

For more information contact Miller at 424-1984.

Registration for YMCA soccer set for Aug. 2

THE 1986 YMCA soccer season starts in earnest this month with a free clinic for those who pre-register on Aug. 2 at the Carmel Middle School.

Pre-registration will be held at the school from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 2, with the free clinic — conducted by former Argentine national team player Carlos Volpini — set for noon to 1 p.m. Volpini is the YMCA soccer coordinator.

The annual soccer camp will be conducted from Aug. 25-29, with the soccer season set to kick-off Saturday, Sept. 20. The season runs through Nov. 22.

Pre-registration by mail can be made from Aug. 1-Sept. 3. A "last-chance" registration will be held 10 a.m. to noon, Saturday, Sept. 6 at the Carmel Middle School. No registrations will be accepted after Sept. 6.

All boys and girls from kindergarten through eighth-grade will be eligible for the program.

Participants will receive a complete uniform, including soccer shirt, shorts, soccer socks, and a team photograph. All children will also have an equal opportunity to play.

Registration fee is $35.

For more information contact the YMCA at 600 Camino El Estero, Monterey, 93940, or call 373-4167.

Friends of library to hold book sale Aug. 1 and 2

EVER WANTED to replenish your home library, but didn't want to pay expensive prices for books? Now's your chance.

The Friends of Harrison Memorial Library will be conducting its annual book sale, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Friday and Saturday, Aug. 1 and 2 at the Carmel Middle School Gymnasium, south side of Carmel Valley Road, about one-half mile east of Highway 1.

According to organizers a vast variety of books wil be on sale, from hardcover classics to paperback novels. Coffee, tea and cookies will be on sale both days of the event.

The sale is a benefit for the library; it will raise funds for non-budgeted items such as new equipment, books, supplies and expanded services.

Admission is free as is the ample parking at the school.

There will also be a special advance sale for current members of the Friends of the Harrison Memorial Library, 1-4 p.m., Thursday, July 31. This sale will be open to members of the public if they purchase memberships, $5 individual and $10 family.

BRING YOUR suitcase and be prepared to fly off into the wild blue yonder. No, you're not going to be inducted into the Air Force, but, if you're a winner, you may be on your way to a four-day vacation to Hawaii.

All this is part of what's being called a "Suitcase Party," 6-11:30 p.m., Thursday, Aug. 7 at the Hyatt Regency Monterey Ballroom and Whisper's Lounge, the latest benefit bash for the inaugural Monterey Film Festival.

Contests will be held for best male and female "tourist outfits" and for "Best Decorated Suitcase." Winners of the outfit contest will win a trip for two to Holywood, courtesy of Hyatt Hotels and the best decorator gets a set of luggage from Macy's Monterey.

Of course there will be recorded music as well as live music by the Roger Eddy Group, no-host cocktails and food stations.

Be forewarned, however. Winners of the drawing for the trip must be prepared to travel the next day to Hawaii, Aug. 8-11 for a three-night, four-day stay at the Hyatt Waikiki, airfare courtesy of United Airlines. Drawing takes place at 10 p.m.

The film festival is slated for Feb. 5-8, 1987.

For more information on this bash, contact Tracey Buswell at 647-2045 or 372-1234.

ON THE COLLEGE FRONT

Meanwhile, Susan L. Wilson, who graduated from Carmel High School in 1983, has just completed her junior year at the University of Puget Sound in Tacoma, Wash.

Wilson was named to the Dean's List with a 4.0 grade point average for both the fall 1985 and spring 1986 semesters. She is majoring in economics and carries a 3.79 cumulative average.

She is the daughter of Jacques and Jane Wilson of Carmel Valley.

WRITERS CLUB RELEASES ANTHOLOGY

The Monterey Peninsula Writers Club recently released an anthology of its members works, Visions 1986, the first edition of what will be an annual collection. It is a non-profit local magazine featuring club members' unedited short literary works, including travel pieces, short stories, essays and poems.

The magazine includes works by Carmel writers, George and Joy Bestor, Leland Lewis, Phil Shepherdson, Ann Woolworth, and Pebble Beach writer Dorothy Kimmel. Dr. Lewis "Ig" Heniford of Carmel was one of the advisors and

Safety tips for campers

During the summer the California Department of Forestry (CDF) and the United States Forest Service (USFS) remind campers and recreationists to keep in mind the few tips that insure safe outings.

Preplan your outing. Consider the type of recreation you will be involved in. Compare it to your physical condition. Leave explicit instructions where you will be and the date of return with someone.

Check whether permits are needed for entry or for campfires prior to leaving on the trip. If open campfires are necessary and allowed by permit or permission, pick a safe location. Tall brush and tree limbs are hazardous. Clean all flammable vegetation away from the fire site for a minimum of ten feet. Make a shallow depression and surround it with rocks.

A small hot fire conserves fuel and is better for cooking. Never leave the fire unattended. Keep water and shovel nearby and available should the unexpected happen.

Extinguish campfires by pouring small amounts of water and stirring with a shovel. When you are certain the fire is out, feel the ashes with your bare hand carefully and make absolutely sure it's out. Do not leave the camp until the fire is dead out and cold. And leave the campsite clean for the next person.

SCOLIOSIS? ...A SIMPLE CHECK

The term "scoliosis" means "curvature of the spine." Some types of scoliosis are due to the muscular weakness of polio, different types of nerve degeneration, and birth defects. The type of scoliosis we will talk about is due to an imbalance of the muscular support to the spine from imbalanced nerve function.

DR. BEACHAM

The curvature of the spine develops because the muscles that support the spine have unequal strength from side to side. A muscle which is quite strong on one side will naturally pull the spine over when there is no opposing pull from weak muscles on the opposite side.

The obvious answer to the problem is to find the imbalance when it first develops, to prevent the abnormal bone formation.

Most cases of scoliosis are observed and reported by parents. Unfortunately, this is usually after the condition has become considerably progressed. The parents are unaware of the early signs of developing scoliosis, the condition has to be relatively advanced before it is recognized.

There are many signs of developing scoliosis that every parent should know so that the earliest possible treatment can be obtained.

Observe your child's general structural balance. The pelvis, shoulders, and head should be carried level. With your child in an erect position observe the head, making sure it is level and not tilted to one side or another. Now, looking at the shoulders, see that they too are level and not being carried with one shoulder higher than the other. Checking the pelvis is a bit more difficult, one indication is the way your child wears his pants. See if one side is worn higher than the other, or place the knife-edge of your index finger, one on each hip, to determine the tilt. Foot flare also may indicate a muscular imbalance. This procedure may also be used on adults.

The key is to recognize an imbalance early in its development and obtain evaluation and possible correction.

The prevention of scoliosis is extremely important to your child's future health and general well being.

Carmel artist John Cunningham recently had an exhibit of his works at the Cogley Art Center, Klamath Falls, Ore. Owners of the gallery, Lloyd and Sue Cogley, are former residents of Carmel and Carmel Valley. Lloyd studied at the Carmel Art Institute and was owner of the Mosaic Gallery in Carmel during the late 1950s.

THEATER BENEFIT FOR CANNERY ROW FOUNDATION

Pre-party food and wine at 6 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 2 will precede the first Saturday evening performance of John Steinbeck's Pipe Dream (Sweet Thursday set to a Rogers and Hammerstein musical) and will benefit the Cannery Row Foundation operating fund. The foundation is a non-profit historical research and educational foundation established to preserve the historical resources of the Old Row.

Donations to the benefit pre-party and performance are $10 for seniors and students; general admission is $15 per person or two for $25. Tickets are available in advance from Center Stage Ticketing at 467 Alvarado St., Monterey, or at the door the evening of the performance. For information and advance tickets, call Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561.

The pre-party and buffet hors d'oeuvres are being provided by Cannery Row restaurants and other peninsula restaurants and caterers. The pre-party will begin at 6 p.m., with the performance to begin at its normal 8 p.m. curtain time. Proceeds will help with operating costs and continuing historical research by the foundation.

For more information, or to volunteer for this event and other Cannery Row Foundation activities, please contact Michael Hemp, executive director of the foundation at 375-3882.

MEALS ON WHEELS NEEDS VOLUNTEER DRIVERS

Meals on Wheels provides meals five days a week to shut-ins and senior citizens who are unable to provide for themselves. Meals can be prepared but without sufficient volunteer drivers to deliver meals daily (Monday through Friday) the program cannot be successful.

There are 20 routes; 20 drivers are needed each day. Drivers can volunteer for one day a week, one day a month, or more if possible. During the summer months the need is acute, as volunteer drivers leave for vacations.

Anyone who can volunteer some free time should contact Volunteers in Action at 373-6177 for more information.

NEWS FROM THE SERVICE FRONT

Cadet John J. MacPherson Jr., son of John J. and Jacqueline MacPherson of Carmel, received practical work in military leadership at the U. S. Army ROTC advanced camp, Fort Riley, Kan.

The six-week camp, attended by cadets normally between their third and fourth year of college, includes instruction in communications, management and survival training.

Successful completion of the advanced camp and graduation from college results in a commission as a second lieutenant in either the U. S. Army, Army Reserve or National Guard for the cadet.

MacPherson is a student at Arkansas State University.

Staff Sgt. Kenneth E. Hohler, son of Kenneth E. and Juanita Hohler of Carmel Valley, has graduated from the Air Force non-commissioned officer leadership school at Wheeler Air Force Base in Hawaii.

The sergeant studied techniques of leadership, management and supervision.

Hohler is an intelligence operations specialist with the Air Force Element at Camp Smith, Hawaii.

He is a 1976 graduate of Carmel High School.

Capt. Rodolfo R. DiazPons has participated in Cardinal Point III, an 8th Infantry short-term field exercise held in West Germany.

His wife, Diane, is the daughter of Pauline Ruhl of Carmel Valley.

Air Force Lt. Col. Charles W. Casey, son of Charles W. Casey of Carmel, has arrived for duty with the Second Tactical Fighter Training Squadron, Tyndall Air Force Base, Fla.

Casey is an instructor pilot.

Air Force Capt. Clair Carter, daughter of Annabelle and Charles R. Carter of Carmel, has arrived for duty with the 2852nd Air Base Group, McClellan Air Force Base, Calif.

Carter is a transportation officer.

Marine Gunnery Sgt. Lewis C. Chamberlin, son of Roy W. Chamberlin of Carmel, has reenlisted for five years while serving with 4th Marine Aircraft Wing, Willow Grove.

A 1969 graduate of Leland High School, San Jose, he joined the Marine Corps in December 1970.

Art association mounts competitive

The Central Coast Art Association's annual Seaside city hall competitive exhibition will be on view Aug. 1 through 28.

Judges will be Margaret Roberts and Harold Holly. Cash prizes and ribbons will be presented at a reception, 7 to 9 p.m. Friday, Aug. 9 in the Seaside City Hall Art Gallery, 440 Harcourt Ave., Seaside.

The exhibit can be viewed weekdays, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

'A Tale of Two Cities' auditions

Auditions will take place Wednesday and Thursday, Aug. 6-7, for the first staging of the winning entry in the Carmel National Playwriting Competition.

The adaptation of Charles Dickens' A Tale of Two Cities will be directed by James Mairs. It calls for nine men and four women, ages 25 to 70, and each will have to portray multiple roles.

Auditions are scheduled at 7 p.m. in Sunset Theater, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel. For details, call 624-3996.

an addition of four second-story apartments, also on San Carlos Street.

Projects that are expected to increase water use and their per-year water increase include: the McEldowney condominiums, 0.23 ac. ft.; Ben Enea's two retail shops and one apartments, 0.19 ac. ft.; Freschi condominiums, 0.90 ac. ft.; and the Grunion Run restaurant site development of three office/apartment buildings (no information on its water increase.) There are also at least 10 residential building projects pending.

THE ORDINANCE mandating the moratorium does not specify under what conditions the moratorium might be lifted, Buel explained, and he expects the water board to debate those issues Aug. 11. A change from annual reports on water consumption to monthly reports from Cal-Am will assist the district in tracking water use and may be a major factor in determining when the moratorium can be lifted, he said.

Since the moratorium set in July is temporary, Buel explained the water board on Aug. 11 must again "make a factual determination if any jurisdiction has exceeded it allotment." If it determines that the figures are correct, and Carmel is over, it will reset the moratorium.

The board will also discuss what to do about issuing connection permits for projects currently undergoing Carmel's own permit process. That includes:

- Projects that might actually reduce water usage in the city by the installation of new plumbing or complete retrofitting of an existing building with low-water usage fixtures.
- Projects that will use more water than before but are currently within the permit process for the city.
- Projects that are planned for a site with a meter that has been unused for some time, particularly if it has not been used for more than a year. That includes projects which would decrease the water use from the previous use.

Buel explained that the board might consider a "rolling review" of water use in Carmel. Using monthly figures, the district could consider the water use for a 12-month period prior to whatever the current month is, rather than the rigid July-to-June water year. Examples would be adding the water use from September 1985 through August 1986, from October 1985 through November 1986 or from November 1985 through October 1986. That could continue throughout the year.

If water use is below the allocation during that 12-month period, the board may be able to begin setting water meters again.

If the board decides to do that, Buel said, it will also have to decide at what point it would again stop issuing water permits and both the city and water district must decide who will get the meters. It may be done only on a first-come, first-served basis, he added, with the projects currently undergoing the city permit process coming first.

CARMEL HAS requested a review by the water management district of the equitability of its allocation.

The allocations were set in April 1981 to divide the 20,000 ac. ft. of water the district had to distribute.

Representatives from each of the jurisdictions and the water management district worked together in 1980 to produce an allocation formula. Buel explained that 1979 was used as a base figure for existing water use.

An independent consultant, Dick Recht, was then hired to determine future growth to the year 2000 in each jurisdiction based on figures supplied by each city and the county. The number of projected new single-family homes, multi-family dwellings and employees were multiplied by a yearly use per unit or person (employees) to determine future needs.

In order to change the allocation, Heuer said either the water supply has to increase or Carmel would have to take water from another jurisdiction.

OBITUARIES

Margaret G. Booze

Memorial services took place July 16 at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove for Margaret Grayson Booze, a long-time peninsula resident, who died July 12 at Community Hospital. She was 82.

Born Sept. 10, 1903 in Cincinnati, she had lived in Pebble Beach since 1953 and was the widow of nationally known ceramics engineer Macdonald Charles Booze, who died in 1964.

An active volunteer at Community Hospital, she worked for more than 5,000 hours with the hospital auxiliary.

Survivors include a stepdaughter, Kathryn Sauer of Cincinnati; three stepsons, Roger of Cleveland, Richard of Maine and Mack of Chicago; and 13 grandchildren.

Inurnment took place at the El Carmelo Cemetery, with the Paul Mortuary in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Community Hospital Auxiliary, Box HH, Monterey 93942.

Sarah J. Maurer

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea for Sarah Josephine Maurer, a Carmel resident for the past five years, who died July 12 at Beverly Manor Convalescent Hospital. She was 86.

Born Oct. 2, 1899 in Brooklyn, N. Y., she moved to the peninsula from Seaford, N. Y. She worked for Sunoco Oil Co. as a chef for five years before retiring.

Survivors include a daughter, Anne Sluys of Seaford, four grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

At her request, no services were planned. Inurnment is to take place at a later date in Seaford.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Helen L. Larimer

Memorial services took place July 23 at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove for Helen L. Larimer, a resident of Carmel for the past 16 years, who died July 19 at Community Hospital. She was 65.

She was born Sept. 3, 1920 in Neodesha, Kan. She was a member of the Community Hospital Auxiliary and the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art.

Mrs. Larimer is survived by her husband, Gene.

Private burial took place at El Carmelo Cemetery.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Monterey Bay Chapter of the Kidney Foundation, P. O. Box 3625, Salinas 93901.

Grace C. Record

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea for Grace Cordelle Record, a 28-year resident of Pebble Beach, who died July 15 at her home. She was 93.

Born Oct. 21, 1892 in Weiser, Idaho, she made her home in southern California prior to her move to the Monterey Peninsula. She was a member of the PEO Sisterhood, Chapter EC of Monrovia.

She was the widow of Frederick Record, one of the few American pilots trained to fly in World War I. He died in 1984 at the age of 95.

Survivors include a daughter, Ann Kronquest of Pebble Beach; a brother, Howard Cordelle of Laguna Hills, and one grandson, Gary Kronquest of El Dorado Hills.

At her request, no funeral services took place. Inurnment will be at Riverside National Cemetery, where her husband is buried.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the charity of the donor's choice.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

James Auerbach

Funeral services and cremation took place July 16 at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea for James Auerbach, who died July 13 in Tucson, Ariz., of injuries he sustained in an automobile accident on July 4. He was 24.

Born April 9, 1962 in Norwalk, Conn., he lived in Los Angeles for the past five years and graduated from UCLA in June with a degree in political science and economics.

He served as administrative vice president of the UCLA student government and also as president of the Young Republicans. At the time of his death, he was working with the Dolphin Group, a public relations firm, as a political campaign publicist and strategist.

For two summers he had been an intern in the Washington, D. C. office of Sen. Howard Baker, former Senate majority leader. For the past five years, he resided at UCLA, at the Alpha Tau Omega House.

Survivors include his parents, Doris and Harold Auerbach of Carmel; a sister, Rita Auerbach of Carmel; and two brothers, Harold Jr. of Parsippany, N. J., and William of New York City.

Inurnment was planned for a later date. A memorial gathering of friends took place July 20 at the Westwood Village Chapel in Los Angeles. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the James Auerbach Memorial Scholarship Fund, care of Alpha Tau Omega, 515 Gayley Ave., Los Angeles 90024.

Rex A. Romesburg

Funeral services took place July 27 in Elsie, Mich. for Rex Allen Romesburg of Carmel Valley, who died July 21 as a result of a Carmel Valley automobile accident. He was 55.

Born July 1, 1931 in Detroit, Mich., he lived in Fremont for 20 years before moving to Carmel Valley last year. A retired carpenter, he had been working as a caretaker at the John Gardiner Tennis Ranch in Carmel Valley.

He was a member of Carpenters Union Local 36 in Oakland and the Moose Lodge in Fremont.

Survivors include his mother, Lela of Owosso, Mich.; his father, Clifford of Howell, Mich.; two sons, Rex of Arizona and William of

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Those reports we sometimes read about residents of the mountain villages in Soviet Georgia who live to 150 or more are greatly exaggerated, according to Dr. Djordeje Kozarevic, director of the Institute of Chronic Disease and Gerontology in Belgrade, Yugoslavia. Dr. Kozarevic asserts that many people in those villages do live to be 80 to 100 years old, which happens in many parts of the world. The doctor, who believes that the maximum human life span is about 110 to 120 years, credits unusual longevity to an active family life, outdoor living, little dramatic change of lifestyle, good diet and a low level of stress.

America's older population has moved from the cities to the suburbs, according to a report prepared by John R. Logan of the State University of New Youk at Albany. In the 1980 Census, for the first time in history, more people over the age of 65 (some 10.1 million) lived in the suburbs than in the central cities (8.1 million).

Detroit; two daughters, Sharon Ahrens of Imlay City, Mich., and Karen Cantrell of Tallahassee, Fla.; four sisters, June Hautamaki of Detroit, Iva Holton of Ovid, Mich., Frances Nethaway of Elsie, Mich., and Betty Saxton of Lakeland, Fla.; two brothers, Clifford of Detroit and Paul of Lakeland, and four grandchildren.

He was engaged to be married to Adrona Blunt of Carmel Valley.

Services were under the direction of the Carter Funeral Home in Elsie. Mission Mortuary was in charge of local arrangements. Burial took place in the Fairfield Township Cemetery in Elsie.

Philip H. Bradbury

Private family services took place for Philip H. Bradbury, a resident of Pebble Beach for 15 years, who died July 20 at the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula. He was 67.

Born Aug. 26, 1918 in Pasadena, he attended the Palo Alto Military Academy and Santa Rosa High School. In 1936 he graduated from the Black Fox Military Academy in Hollywood. A member of a well-known Santa Rosa family, he was the grandson of Santa Rosa's first fire chief, Henry Baker.

An Air Force veteran of World War II, he was a B-17 pilot and flew 28 missions, including the first raid on Berlin and the Polanski oil fields.

For 26 years, he worked in sales at Allegheny Ludlum Steel Corp. in San Francisco. Until six years ago, he owned the Bradbury Paint Store on Lighthouse Avenue in New Monterey. After selling the store, he worked for the Carmel Color Center before retiring a year ago.

He is survived by his wife, Lorene.

The Mission Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula, P. O. Box 223139, Carmel 93922.

New surgery center opens at Community Hospital

IN RESPONSE to a growing trend toward outpatient surgical procedures, Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula plans to construct a $5.5 million Outpatient Surgery Center.

To be built adjacent to the main hospital behind the Outpatient Pavilion, the 27,500 sq. ft. facility would be a separate building connected to the hospital by an enclosed walkway. Its exterior design would match that of the hospital. Forty underground parking spaces would be provided.

Construction costs will total $3.72 million, while equipment, fees and contingencies will cost $1.75 million. Funding will come from donations, depreciation and borrowed funds.

A public hearing on the proposed facility was held July 8 before the Monterey Planning Commission. Site preparation is planned for late 1986, with completion of construction by the end of 1987.

About 40 percent of all surgical procedures at Community Hospital are now done on an outpatient basis, and within 10 years at least half of all surgeries are expected to be done that way. These outpatient surgeries are now done in a facility basically designed only for inpatient surgery.

The growth in outpatient surgery has resulted from advances in medical technology, which have made procedures faster and more comfortable for patients, and from changes in reimbursement formulas used by Medicare and private insurance companies, as well as cost containment measures by the hospital.

Many surgical procedures that once required hospitalization now can be performed in minutes, but the increased demand for this type of surgery has strained the capacity of the existing Short Stay Unit and operating rooms.

"The medical staff supported construction of the facility to handle the increased number of outpatient surgeries," said Dr. Ronald Fuerstner, president of the Community Hospital medical staff. "We participated in planning and design of the center to make this an especially pleasant and useful facility for patients."

Dr. Ben Richards, chairman of the department of surgery and head of the medical committee which studied the Outpatient Surgery Center, noted that such centers have set the pace for cost containment in the field of surgery. The variety of procedures performed safely without requiring admission to the hospital continues to grow and includes both surgical and medical specialties.

The new building will house laser units and will be the central location for advanced diagnostic work.

"Two laser rooms will be available for patients who need eye surgery, as well as two rooms for fiber optic diagnostic equipment," Dr. Richards said. "Operating rooms and additional treatment rooms will permit procedures under local or general anesthesia.

"We will be able to perform colonoscopies, arthroscopies, hernia repairs, dental surgery, cataract surgery and gynecologic procedures. And we will set fractures, insert cardiac pacemakers, and do a long list of other procedures in an up-to-date setting."

Necessary paperwork for most outpatients will be handled by telephone before they come in for surgery, and the necessary preoperative screening, testing and interviewing will be done in a minimum of time to reduce patient stress and disruption.

Waiting areas will accommodate 25 people in clustered seating, and areas for refreshments, children's activities, videotape and television viewing will be provided. A private quiet room will be available for physician/family conferences.

Patients will then go to preparation/holding areas, where they will change into gowns in 10 individual cubicles arranged around a central nurses' station. Four operating rooms will be available. For maximum patient comfort, operating rooms will include state-of-the-art lighting, video and stereo sound systems.

After surgery, patients will go to the 12-bed recovery room adjacent to the operating rooms, which will be monitored by the nurses' station. The recovery room will be equipped and staffed to handle any emergency that might arise.

Strasser Kauffman seeks applicants to Mid-Valley board

FIFTH DISTRICT Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman is seeking qualified applicants for the Mid-Carmel Valley Fire Protection District Board of Directors.

The Mid-Carmel Valley Fire Protection District is governed by a five-member board, each of whom is appointed for a four-year term. Duties are legislative and involve formulation and adoption of policies for the operation of the fire department.

The board adopts reasonable district ordinances for the protection of life and property, approves the annual budget and all expenditures, and is responsible for hiring and firing all district personnel. The board meets on the third Wednesday of each month at 8:30 a.m. at the fire station.

Anyone who is interested and resides in that part of the Fifth District which makes up the Mid-Carmel Valley Fire Protection District, should contact Strasser Kauffman's office or call 649-6515.

Rummaging into August

A NEW full month's worth of programs here at the Carmel Youth Center kicks off Friday, Aug. 1.

Our annual rummage sale begins Saturday, Aug. 2 and runs from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Any last-minute donations should be brought to the rear of the center.

Also, my thanks to all those who have already donated to our cause. Please stop by that day, as you know we serve the best hot dogs on the planet and have had people from as far away as Aptos rave about them.

The rummage sale is being held at the same time as the first Carmel Youth Center radio-controlled car race. This race is for radio-controlled cars with soft rubber tires (not dirt tires). Entrance fee is $2.

Our team captains — Derek Bonspur, Adam Jardine and Ty Brooks — have promised to squash all competition. The layout is in our inside gym, so rain, fog or shine we will race.

By now you will have already received the program flyer for the month of August. If you have not, please stop at the youth center for one.

Remember, we serve lunch daily for $2 and dinner on Saturday night for $3. We offer such dishes as Chinese chicken salad, chili and grilled cheese sandwich, burgers, hot dogs, turkey sandwiches — such a variety — such a price!

Outdoor Singles keep active

Monterey Outdoor Singles is a group of predominantly single adults who enjoy outdoor activities, such as hiking, biking, tennis, sailing, softball and beach parties.

Members range in age from 30 to 60 and come from a variety of backgrounds and professions.

New members are welcome to the monthly planning potluck. For more information, call 625-4486 or 625-2092.

Beginners' chess instruction offered

Chess instruction for beginners will be offered at Monterey Public Library the first Wednesday of each month in the library community room. Tournaments will take place during the sessions, and a chess set will be awarded each month to the winner of the tournament.

The program, sponsored by Monterey Public Library and the Library League, will be conducted by Edward Stachowiak. Families are encouraged to join. There are no fees involved and all ages are welcome. Meeting hours are 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Summer specials for tennis players

The Hyatt Regency Monterey and the City of Monterey Parks and Recreation Department are presenting a special reduced tennis court user fee rate this summer at the Hyatt Regency Monterey.

The regular court fee rate of $15 per hour will be reduced to $7.50 per hour for Monterey residents on a space-available basis.

Hyatt Regency Monterey Tennis Facilities include six championship tennis courts, two lighted courts, a pro shop and lessons under the direction of Vic Brown, USPTA. For reservations, call 647-2029.

Here's Dickie!

HOLLYWOOD COMES to Carmel. I received word that Dick Carson and his wife, Pat, have sold their Hollywood home and have purchased one in Carmel. Dick (Johnny's brother) will be commuting south to continue his work as director of Wheel of Fortune and The Merv Griffin Show. Bill Dodge thinks that they'll be a fine addition to our community and I concur.

ROSES ARE RED

Joe Candia, who runs "Make Someone Happy Flowers," stopped by the house the other day to tell me business is great and that he's ecstatic about the new home he purchased in Yountville, near Napa. No, he's not moving there, it's just a place to get away from it all. Joe, who is called "The Rose Queen" by our Mayor Clint Eastwood, has done everything, from selling newspapers, to boxing, owning a gas station, and even owning a bar...now it's roses! Joe knew Clint in the early days when both resided in Oakland.

HOW MANY TIMES HAVE YOU HEARD THIS ONE?

Marion Fischer, wife of Councilman Bob Fischer, tells about the conversation she heard the other day between a bus driver and his passengers. Seems they just got off the bus and were given these instructions: "You go two blocks down and at San Carlos turn right and go up a block and one half and you'll find it on the left-hand side of the street." Wonder what they were talking about? Could it have been Henri Corbat?

A SUCCESS

The Fifth Annual House Open Golf and Tennis Tournament held at Rancho Canada and the Beach and Tennis Club was a rousing success according to Dick Scofield, who originally founded this tournament with Kit Manning. The tournament features local real estate agents, lenders, title and escrow folk, and builders. This year's tournament raised $4,000 for Battered Women and Children Shelters which, incidentally, are in need of equipment (washers, dryers, etc.). More than 100 golfers and 30 tennis players participated with more than 200 attending the dinner.

HERE AND THERE

Who was that lovely girl being escorted by one of the town's most eligible bachelors? Oh, we know, it was Kandie Williams from Santa Rosa having the time of her life at places like the Gold Fork where host Russ Harris gave Kandie and her companion the "royal" treatment, under the watchful eye of Ted Balestreri, and then the following night at the Sardine Factory where the dinner and ambiance was just as great. Oh, the life of beautiful women who get the "royal" treatment. And who was the bachelor? Three guesses!

ANOTHER GOLF TOURNAMENT

Word from Dan Tibbitts and Charles Pius, co-chairmen of the Fourth Annual Hospice Golf Scramble to be held at Carmel Valley Ranch, Sept. 8. It will be a shotgun start beginning at 1 p.m. The $200 entry fee includes a chance at a grand prize drawing, golf, carts, box lunch, Bloody Marys, cocktail and hors d'oeuvres at the 19th hole. Mark Rolfing, managing partner of Kapalua Bay Hotel, has offered the grand prize of four days and three nights of golf for two at the Kapalua Bay Hotel in Maui, and that includes transportation. Other prizes include an automobile and $10,000 for holes in one. Proceeds from the tournament go to benefit Hospice. Sign up now, it's a worthy cause.

Mike Reid, touring pro from Utah, made an appearance at the Pebble Beach Golf Clinic yesterday to the delight of the 12 participants. Mike, who has won more than a million dollars and has yet to win a tournament, is one of the most consistent pros on the tour. Very steady. He came here at the request of Harold Firstman, director, and John Geersten, Jr., one of the regular instructors at the golf clinic. Claude Harmon, who was reported to be ill and was going to cancel, will be on hand, as scheduled.

Let's do it again.

Musicians exchange black tie for beer and black T-shirts

By ANNE PAPINEAU

WHEN MUSICIANS AND crew from the Carmel Bach Festival met their Cabrillo Music Festival counterparts last Monday, a spirit of competition was in the air. Their confrontation site was not a concert hall, but the softball field at Carmel Middle School.

"Let's go for some dental work," shouted a Bach festival artist, pounding his fist into a catcher's mitt.

"They're very weak. They never play any music later than the 1800s, and it shows" retorted a Santa Cruz constituent.

The scene was the first-ever softball game between a score of spirited artists who proved they are more at ease holding oboes and violin bows than a Louisville Slugger. And even longtime Bach festival season ticket holders would probably have difficulty recognizing their favorite musicians when the players are attired, not in tuxedos, but black team T-shirts.

"It's Bach's Double Violin Concerto," explained violinist Jeff Gauthier of the musical verse printed on the team tee.

CONFUSION IS reflected in the mercurial moves of Willie Whynot, principal percussionist for the Cabrillo Music Festival and team co-captain, caught between second and third base.

BACH FESTIVAL REVIEW

BY JO ANN LA TORRA

Triumphs of style

HAVING MISSED the Colorado Quartet during the first week of the Bach Festival, I rectified the error and heard them last Thursday night in a program of string quartets by Beethoven, Mozart and Mendelssohn.

Beethoven's Op. 18, No. 6, opened the program in a generally very good performance. There were occasional lapses of tension in the first movement, and I would have liked more attention to the drama inherent in the silences of the last movement. They captured the wit of that movement well, and could have enhanced the effect with longer pauses.

The Mendelssohn quartets are not often heard, so this performance of Op. 44, No. 1, was something of a novelty. It is a good piece of music, but it does have some weaknesses, especially in the first movement. Mendelssohn evidently loved his opening gesture, a dramatic downward plunge. He uses it a bit too often and the movement is overly long. The Colorado's performance was nevertheless satisfying.

Although the sound for the Mozart (K. 590) was clean and clear, and they mercifully did not drag the minuet, the melodic lines might have been warmer, more vocal.

The sound of this group is very small, which may put off some listeners, but it is an individual sound. They are, at the moment, at their best in energetic movements rather than lyrical ones; the ensemble is impeccable and intonation generally good. They are growing and are definitely a quartet to watch.

James Walker, a young organist from Los Angeles, came in during the ninth inning, as it were, to pinch hit for Ken Ahrens, who has been ill. He had to take over several continuo parts as well as the Tuesday afternoon organ recitals. Under the circumstances he has done very well. Organists really have it tough, folks, because each instrument is totally different, far beyond the matter of touch and volume.

Mendelssohn and Bach make up the Tuesday concert, including the nearly-obligatory group of newly discovered chorale preludes. These works are getting a lot of attention beacuse it is not so common to have "new" works by Bach. However, not all scholars are convinced that they are all definitely by Bach; even if they are, it is Bach in an early stage of development. Musicians and musicologists find them interesting for that reason. I'm not so sure about the general public.

The morning concerts feature a variety of music in performances that range from good student quality to first-rate, and just about everything in between.

Among the vocal pieces, Debbie Cree's group of songs by Henry Purcell was especially nice. The half-dozen selections were familiar ones, which made it easy to identify Cree's personal embellishments. Judith Davidoff joined her, with some stylish playing on the viola da gamba. "Come, all ye Songsters," with a flashy ground for the continuo, was wonderful. Madeline Ingram was at the harpsichord.

The same program (Monday) also contained a delightful performance of the Mendelssohn piano trio in D minor, Op. 49 — Mark Volkert, violin; Neal Lo Monaco, cello; Janet Guggenheim, piano.

Sergiu Luca's performance of the Mendelssohn Violin Concerto had not especially excited me, although my personal poll left me in a minority of one. However, his playing of the Second Sonata for Solo Violin by Sebastian Bach, and one of the Op. 1 sonatas of Handel (with harpsichordist Bruce Lamott) was excellent. The ensemble with Lamott was very sensitive to the underlying rhythm, making it tight and exciting. The solo work was simply masterful.

BAROQUE CHAMBER music has undoubtedly left more than one listener wondering what all the fuss is about. The vast majority of it is (literally) in the category of dinner music. Much of it that is great fun to play loses something in translation from the parlor to the concert stage.

Among other creditable offerings were a couple of items that deserve special mention. One is the lovely sonata for bassoon and basso continuo by Fasch. This little-known composer holds up surprisingly well on the stage. His harmonic language is more colorful and complex than practically any of his contemporaries, save for old Bach. For those who need to find romantic trends in order to make music palatable, they abound here. Jesse Read, bassoon, joined by Judith Davidoff for continuo, gave a wonderful performance of it.

A triumph of style over content best describes the sonata by Zelenka for two oboes, bassoon and basso continuo. Also little-known, perhaps with good reason, Zelenka's music is, shall we say, slight. However, as performed here by Michael Rosenberg and Danna Sundet, oboes, and Jesse Read on bassoon, it was thoroughly delightful. The slow movement almost lost us, for it got so slow that it didn't go anywhere, but the flashy outer movements were enough fun that it didn't matter much.

Judith Davidoff also gave a very nice performance of a solo sonata for viola da gamba by Telemann, and Michael Rosenberg was the star of the Mozart Oboe Quartet, K. 370 (after Mozart, of course).

Janina Fialkowska, pianist, presented solo concerts on Saturdays. Her program opened with a set of variations on the bass line from Cantata No. 12 of Bach, "Weinen, Klagen." Catalogued for piano or organ, it seems more suited to the organ in its sonorities, but to the piano in its technique. In any case, it is a lesson in the different variation techniques used by Baroque and Romantic composers. The lament bass (descending chromatic scale) is very short and, of necessity, harmonically limited. This presented no problem to the Baroque composer as it was a technique he had grown up with — could improvise on for hours, if necessary. However, the Romantic style is quite different, especially in regard to rhythm. Therefore, for Liszt, the primary option was to add more and more notes. The piece has a lot of notes and is incredibly noisy, but not very interesting.

The Mendelssohn F sharp Fantasy, Op. 28, on the other hand, is a charming piece, filled with vivacity and well-being. Fialkowska got a bit heavy-handed in the first movement, but her passage work in the finale was lovely. The movement would have more structure if she would give a bit more attention to the slower moving parts, but it is awfully easy to get lost in all those fast notes!

Beethoven's penultimate sonata, Op. 110, followed. She discussed Beethoven's late works briefly, the triumph over tragedy that is at the core of most of them. Her own interpretation here, perhaps reflecting her own personality, was sunny and optimistic.

Karl Markus, the visiting tenor, is giving master classes on Thursdays. Master classes are, naturally, of primary interest to players of whatever instrument is featured, so a lot of singers turned out.

It is very instructive to witness first-hand the unbelievable amount of detail there is to be worked out in putting together a piece of music, and the many choices that are possible for each and every note. Of course, a lot can be left to intuition and to chance, but if you ever wonder why the great performers are great, here is the answer. Talent is a start. After that: dedication, hard work, and endless attention to detail.

Multi-media festival recalls Steinbeck

By JEANNE FISCHER

A TAPESTRY of local color, the Monterey Peninsula and Salinas area inspired many of John Steinbeck's novels. From the foothils of the Gabilan Mountains to the weathered canneries of the Row, Steinbeck drew from the people and places he loved to create his fictional characters and settings.

Steinbeck enthusiasts will have the chance to honor the Pulitzer and Nobel Prize-winner at the seventh annual Steinbeck Festival, to take place in Salinas Friday through Monday, Aug. 1-4. The event will feature tours of the Monterey Peninsula and Salinas along with a series of films and lectures at the Salinas Community Center.

Steinbeck's memories of his life in Salinas are evident throughout his classic work, East of Eden. He describes the home where he was born in 1902 as " ...an immaculate and friendly house, grand enough but not pretentious..." Today the old Victorian, located at 132 Central Ave. in Salinas, is operated as a luncheon restaurant by the Valley Guild, a non-profit organization.

One can still envision Main Street in Old Town Salinas alive with the colorful characters of Steinbeck's novels. Many of his fictional characters resembled his long-time companions from his youthful days in Salinas. Herbert Hinrichs, lifelong resident of Salinas and friend of John Steinbeck from early childhood, is portrayed in Cannery Row as the "brave and beautiful boy" Andy, who confronts the old Chinaman. Hinrichs recalls the incident happening before the two were even in "Baby School." Hinrichs received a spanking from the old Chinaman, while Steinbeck was frightened away.

According to Hinrichs, even in elementary school writing was Steinbeck's main object in life.

"He was an odd person, always concentrating and thinking about writing. He loved practical jokes though, but still he never laughed real heartily."

As a youth Steinbeck roamed the streets of Monterey forming lasting impressions that would later in life emerge in his literary works. Today several landmarks still remain, including Ed Rickett's weatherbeaten lab, now a private club, at 800 Cannery Row.

The real turning point in Steinbeck's life resulted from his visits to Carmel. It was at the Pine Inn at Ocean Avenue and Monte Verde that during Memorial Day weekend, 1949, Steinbeck was introduced to Elaine Scott, his third and last wife. Between 1933 and 1936 Steinbeck frequently visited the home of Lincoln Steffens on San Antonio south of Ocean Avenue, now a private residence.

It was here that Steinbeck gathered material for his works In Dubious Battle and Grapes of Wrath. The Carmel Mission is described in The Pastures of Heaven.

A tribute to John Steinbeck is not complete without a trip to the John Steinbeck Library at 110 W. San Luis St. in Salinas. A visit to the Steinbeck Room and archives reveals a treasure of Steinbeck memorabilia, including photographs and taped interviews, rare editions and original manuscripts.

Local historian and Steinbeck scholar Pauline Pearson views the collection of Steinbeck's works as "the cradle of California history," to be enjoyed by generation after generation.

For those who wish to explore the many locales found in Steinbeck's novels and short stories, Pearson has written a Guide to Steinbeck Country. The 37-page booklet identifies the setting found in a number of Steinbeck's works including Pastures of Heaven, To a God Unknown, Tortilla Flat, In Dubious Battle, Of Mice and Men, The Red Pony, The Long Valley, Cannery Row, East of Eden and Sweet Thursday.

The guide is available at the John Steinbeck Library for $5, with all proceeds going to support the festival. For more information on the festival, contact the John Steinbeck Library at 110 W. San Luis St. in Salinas or phone 758-7311.

JOHN STEINBECK, shown here in 1938 while he was still writing The Grapes of Wrath, is the subject of a four-day festival that explores his work in both scholarly and entertaining ways. Check Calendar for a complete rundown of Steinbeck Festival VII events.

From produce to antiques — all will be on sale in old San Juan

THE OLDEST — and largest — community flea market in California marks its 23rd year Sunday, Aug. 3 in San Juan Bautista.

At first glance, you may think you've stumbled into a Middle East bazaar or a European marketplace. But no, the teeming, festive activities are this mission village's version of a flea market, staged against a backdrop of 19th century adobe and frame buildings.

If you've become inured to flea markets as being those dreary, open-air dumps for tacky new merchandise, you're in for a real treat here in this "village of history." Here, you'll find 850 booths lining the main streets as vendors from over 160 California cities and eight states haul in their wares — antique furniture, jewelry, silver, china, rugs, glassware — and every imaginable collectible. All at bargain or bargaining prices.

The locals are present, as well, with stalls of fresh-picked produce, household cast-offs and second-hand treasures from nearby barns, attics and basements. Locals provide the food, too.

You can breakfast on Boy Scout pancakes and join volunteer firemen for chicken barbeque at noontime in the olive grove, in back of the Old Mission. Or you can pick up a hot dog, Polish sausage, or egg roll from sidewalk stalls while you browse for bargains.

Everything in town is open for the day — the Old Mission, State Historic Park and the many antique stores, specialty shops and restaurants.

San Jan Bautista is three miles off Highway 101, 12 miles south of Gilroy, and 33 miles northeast of the Monterey Peninsula.

Spirit of the Highlands reigns at Scottish fest

FAMILIES ATTENDING the 18th Annual Scottish Festival and Highland Games, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 2 at the Monterey County Fairgrounds, will be able to see traditional Scottish events while helping physically handicapped children.

The festival features soccer matches, bagpipe and drumming contests, plus traditional Scottish athletic events such as tossing the caber, throwing the hammer and putting the stone.

General admission is $8 for adults and $6 for military and students with I.D. Children under six are admitted free. Proceeds go to the Elks Major Project in Monterey and other local charities for handicapped children.

The principal event, which begins in the morning, will be the drum major contest. Flamboyant drum majors will strut to music played by kilted musicians, with the competition culminating that afternoon in the Pattee arena at the fairgrounds.

Other entertainment in the main arena will be provided by the Prince Charles Pipe Band of San Rafael, the Continental Color Guard from Fort Ord and Scottish baritone Alex Beaton.

Along with the major event, regular Scottish activities will continue along the oak-studded Fairground Mall throughout the day.

Dancers from all parts of the West Coast will vie for medals and trophies in the Highland Dance Competition, musical groups will provide well-loved tunes of Caledonia, and Scottish clansmen, in their colorful tents, will help the curious trace their heritage.

If all of the excitement stirs up an appetite, both Scottish and American food will be available throughout the day.

For those who wish to carry their fun into the evening, the gala Ceilidh (pronounced "kay-lee"), a traditional Scottish party and dance, will be held 8:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Monterey Room.

Tickets for the party, which features dancing, Scottish entertainment and Scottish country dancing, a $6 for adults and $3 for children under 12. Tickets may be purchased at the Scottish Society's headquarters tent on the day of the games.

This year's celebration marks a return to the Monterey Fairgrounds, where the first Highland Games were held in 1968. Since then, the ever-popular event has been held at Collins Field in Pebble Beach and the Monterey Peninsula College Stadium in Monterey.

Preceding the opening of the festival Saturday will be the traditional Parade of the Caber, the annual procession through downtown Carmel displaying the Ballantine Caber. The festivities begin at 5:30 p.m. Friday, Aug. 1 with a program in Devendorf Park, followed by the parade down Ocean Avenue to Lincoln Street, back up Ocean to San Carlos Street, then south to the Red Lion Tavern, where the caber is displayed year-round. The event is free and open to the public.

Tickets for the weekend's festival and games can be purchased at the following outlets: Abinante's Music and Elks Lodge in Monterey; Bookworks in Pacific Grove; Scotch House in The Barnyard at the mouth of the Valley; Scottish Shop in Carmel; Penny Farthing in Salinas; and at the fairgrounds box office the day of the event.

For more information call 384-7786.

ACCOMPANYING THE Ballantine Caber down Ocean Avenue is a contingent of Scots led by Drum Major Roderick D. Mackay of Del Rey Oaks, Games Chieftain for the Scottish Society of the Monterey Peninsula. This year the caber parade will begin at 6 p.m. Friday, Aug. 1, preceded by a program of music and dance in Devendorf Park. The caber is carried from the park, west on Ocean to Lincoln and back up San Carlos; then south on San Carlos to the Red Lion Tavern, where it makes its home between the games.

All women encouraged to enter walk/run

You can't lose if you finish the Seventh Annual YWCA Walk-Run; all women who finish the race will receive ribbons.

Of course, medals will be awarded to the winners in each category of the event, which begins at 9 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 2 at Lovers Point in Pacific Grove.

The event is open to women and girls of all ages and ability levels. Women wheelchair racers are also encouraged to participate.

The gently sloping course, which begins and ends at Lovers Point, consists of a 3.1-mile walk, a 3.1-mile-run plus a 6.2-mile run.

Paricipants may register at Lovers Point beginning at 7:30 a.m. the day of the race for a $10 fee, which includes a race T-shirt. Proceeds from the race will benefit the YWCA Domestic Violence Emergency Shelter.

About 45 minutes before the race, local runner and Jazzercise instructor Kim Cambell will lead a pre-race warm-up for all participants at Lovers Point.

For further information call 649-0834.

Viennese gala launches Mozart in Monterey

A VIENNESE gala will officially launch the premiere season of the Mozart in Monterey Music Festival. The gala will take place 6 to 9 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 2 in the San Carlos Ballroom of the Monterey Sheraton Hotel.

Heinz Guggisberg, Sheraton executive chef, is planning a light Viennese buffet supper for guests, including some authentic dishes from the time of Mozart in the 18th century. Wines are being provided by the Monterey Vineyard and the decor for the evening is being designed by Jerry Welling. There will be music for dancing, including Viennese waltzes, polkas and other ballroom music.

Highlight of the evening will be the personal appearance of artist Eldon Dedini, who will present and autograph his Mozart in Monterey Festival poster, which will be available for sale. The Dedini poster juxtaposes the Hohensalzburg castle, the stage set of Mozart's opera The Magic Flute, and a portrait of the composer in his scarlet court costume with the Monterey Peninsula symbols of the San Carlos Borromeo Mission and Carmel Mission.

Available for the first time that evening will be tickets for two prizes which will be awarded at the conclusion of the festival — a week for two at the Vienna Hilton with air fare and a week for two at the Salzburg Sheraton. Salzburg was the birthplace of Mozart in the year 1756.

"We are enjoying an enthusiastic response from the peninsula community at large as well as from outside the area," said Artie Early, president of the Monterey Mozart Society. "We are delighted that Paul Eisler, the Austrian consul from San Francisco, has accepted our invitation to attend this exciting evening and help launch Mozart in Monterey."

Early added that tickets for the Evening in Vienna are available through the festival office at 499 Calle Principal, Monterey, CA 93940, 372-3355.

Mozart in Monterey, devoted primarily to the music of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, encompasses a series of five concerts to be held at the Steinbeck Forum of the Monterey Conference Center Aug. 12 through 17. In addition, a free noon-hour performance on Aug. 14 will take place in the lobby of the Monterey Sheraton.

Music director and conductor is Maestro Oleg Kovalenko, with featured artists Jeffrey Siegel, virtuoso pianist; soprano Virginia Sublett; and musicians of note from major symphonies throughout the country.

Evening in Vienna is just one of a number of social events expected to take place in conjunction with the music festival. All series ticket holders and all contributors will be invited to the Grand Champagne Reception Tuesday, Aug. 12 at the Monterey Sheraton following the opening night performance. Other events will be announced in the near future.

Goodwill Industries puts out call for bags

Goodwill Industries is putting out a call for bags: heavy grocery bags, large and small shopping bags, plastic bags.

Most households have a stack of these, but don't use them all. While you're cleaning your closets and cupboards for all the other saleable extras to take to a nearby Goodwill Attended Donation Station — or when you phone for a Goodwill pickup of large and heavy appliances and furniture — Goodwill asks you to add some of your stack of bags to the donation. Or, when you're doing your summer or back-to-school shopping at a Goodwill store, just drop off the extra bags at the store.

Goodwill doesn't have special printed bags for their stores in Santa Cruz and Monterey counties — so donated bags can really help.

College sponsors 'Autumn in Switzerland' tour

"Autumn in Switzerland," a two-week tour for the independent-minded traveler, will be offered by Monterey Peninsula College Community Services Oct. 4-18.

Participants will be home-based in Thun in central Switzerland. From there they will be able to venture forth on independent excursions using a first class traveling pass good for unlimited travel on the vast network of Swiss trains, motorcoaches and ships. Within easy reach are such cities as Zermatt, Geneva and Zurich.

Tour members will receive a variety of travel literature prior to the tour to allow them to tailor a trip to their interests and tastes. Briefings will also be scheduled in the weeks preceding the tour to familiarize participants with interesting cultural and historical sites and to answer questions on individual travel itineraries.

Cost of the tour is $1,680, which includes round trip air transportation from San Francisco, 13 nights' hotel accommodations, most breakfasts and dinners, and a first class travel pass.

Expressionist-style works shown at foundation

One of Carmel's most colorful artists, Charles Newton, will present his Expressionist-style paintings from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 1 to 4 p.m. on weekends during August at the Activities Building of the Carmel Foundation.

Newton, a self-taught oil painter, is known for his jeweler's eye in selecting his combination of colors. Newton has traveled widely, finding inspiration for his paintings from art museums world-wide.

Born in Dresden, Germany in 1940, Newton settled in Carmel with his wife, Ann Joy, in 1980. His colorful history includes working as a diamond dealer in New York and as U.S. Army interpreter under General George S. Patton. Author of the book, A Barrel of Diamonds, he also speaks nine languages.

Newton, who started painting in Carmel in 1980, prefers to paint in the Expressionist style. His vivid colors combine elements of French Fauvism with Blue Rider and Bruecke influences, the latter originating in Dresden at the turn of the century.

This is the first showing of his works.

County symphony will conduct auditions

THE MONTEREY County Symphony Association, Clark E. Suttle, music director and conductor, will conduct auditions Aug. 23 and 24 and on Sept. 6. The auditions will be held at the Symphony Office, Room 7, Sunset Center in Carmel.

Musicians interested in auditioning for a position with the orchestra should contact Barbara Wilson, auditions coordinator, at 624-8511. Each musician must schedule an audition appointment and audition repertoire lists will be given upon request.

Regular orchestra positions that are open to auditions are: Violin I, Principal Violin II, Violin II, Viola, Cello, String Bass, Principal Flute, and Trumpet II.

Extra players for the 1986-87 season open to audition are Oboe III/English Horn, Clarinet III/Bass Clarinet/E-Flat Clarinet, Bassoon III/Contrabassoon, Trumpet III, and Utility French Horn.

'Teams evenly matched'

Cabrillo fest puts Bach batters to test

The game was the brainchild of team captain and Carmel Bach Festival tympanist Tyler Mack.

"This is the first year that the two festivals occurred at the same time. Cabrillo Music Festival used to start after the Bach festival," Mack noted. "Now I could see this game happening every year, making it an annual thing.

"We've had a lot of practices and the team has gotten larger and larger," Mack added during the second inning. "We've got about a third of our orchestra participating. And we're dedicated to winning."

The Bach festival team captain said his team would employ the strategy of "Getting a lot of runs ahead and exploit any defensive weakness the Cabrillo Music Festival might show."

Ken Miller, bassist with the Cabrillo Music Festival and "team captain by default," voiced a different tactic.

"We're trying to mutilate 'em. They hit the ball the way Bach would hit the ball. We have had no practice, we haven't played together, but we're beating them in the second inning eight to three."

Miller gestured in the direction of his next batter, a player comfortably attired in sweats and baseball cap.

"That's our conductor, Dennis Russell Davies. They work for Sandor Salgo. Our conductor is playing second base. What I want to know is, where is Sandor Salgo?"

Bach festival team captain Tyler Mack described Monday's game as "a recreational thing to get our minds off musical performance."

Out of the corner of his eye Mack observed a flubbed play by the Bach contingent.

"My team is screwing up so badly. They aren't really throwing the ball to the right person," he exclaimed.

Later in the afternoon, Bach festival string bass player Warren Long belted a home run.

At game's end, Cabrillo Music Festival emerged the winner, with an 18-13 score.

In retrospect, Mack observed, "We think the teams were evenly matched. No team dominated the other. We held them at the end. If we played four games against them we would win two and they would win two."

'We're trying to mutilate 'em. They hit the ball the way Bach would hit the ball.'

In the event of a 1987 rematch during the 50th anniversary of the Carmel Bach Festival, the question on fans' minds remains — will the softball team strike out or go for Baroque?

Pipe Dream

"It takes all kinds of people to make up the world," sings Ed "Doc" Ricketts in this Rodgers and Hammerstein musical about the Cannery Row denizens who populate Pipe Dream.

John Steinbeck's Sweet Thursday provided the inspiration for this 1955 musical, opening 8 p.m. Thursday, July 31 at the outdoor Forest Theater in Carmel. Hamish Tyler directs Pipe Dream. Much of it is centered around Ricketts' laboratory on Cannery Row.

The musical continues at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the theater on Mountain View and Santa Rita in Carmel. Tickets are $6, $4 for students and senior citizens. The box office opens 7 p.m. Tickets can also be purchased in advance at Center Stage Ticketing, 467 Alvarado St., Monterey, 649-5561.

Audience members are encouraged to arrive early and bring a picnic to enjoy prior to curtain. Theatergoers are encouraged to dress warmly.

Mrs. Warren's Profession

The once-banned comedy by George Bernard Shaw about a woman who rose from poverty to riches through prostitution opens Friday, Aug. 1 at the York School Theatre.

Nick Zanides directs the 1894 play, a presentation of The Monterey Peninsula College Players. Rosamond Goodrich stars as Mrs. Warren, her daughter is portrayed by Mindy Stock-Detro. The cast also includes Harrison Shields, Jim Jensen, Ron Cohen and Ellis Allbee.

Performances continue Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 2-3. The Sunday shows are at 2 p.m.; all other shows begin at 8 p.m. Tickets are $6 general admission, $3 for matinees. The York School Theatre is located off Monterey-Salinas Highway 68. Reservations: 372-2475 or 649-5561.

'Pipe Dream' serenade

ESTEBAN, played by Danilo Jarque, serenades Fauna (LaVonne Rae Andrews) in Pipe Dream. The Rodgers and Hammerstein musical is based on the John Steinbeck novel, Sweet Thursday. The production, directed by Hamish Tyler, opens Thursday, July 31 at the outdoor Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita in Carmel.

Mariachi ensemble to perform authentic orchestrations in Carmel

Both mariachi music lovers and those who simply want to get to know the energetic style of music performed in Mexico are in for a treat.

El Mariachi Mixtlan, an award-winning mariachi band, will present a free concert 2 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 3 at the outdoor Foret Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel.

The concert marks the sixth annual presentation by the popular band in this summer concert series, presented by the city and its cultural commission.

Combining the traditional mariachi dress of botonadura, sombrero de charro, cinturon and matching ties, El Mariachi Mixtlan's joyous sounds will come from violins, trumpets, guitars, vijuela (a five-stringed guitarlike instrument) and the guitarron — the mariachi bass.

El Mariachi Mixtlan has toured Mexico many times, performing from Guadalajara to the Plaza Alameda in Mexico City. While in Mexico City, they appeared on television and were also awarded an honorary membership in the prestigious Mariachi Union.

For the past three years El Mariachi Mixtlan has traveled to Tucson, Ariz. to enter the International Mariachi Competition, where they won second-place honors.

The concert's promoters encourage listeners to bring a picnic lunch, enjoy the fresh air, and experience a taste of "Old Mexico."

ART NOTES
BY SAM COLBURN

Man and nature

IN 1926, BECAUSE of a mysterious call from the North, my parents and I headed up from Glendale to the village of Carmel. It took us two days to get there on a two-lane highway. At that time Carmel was a work of art. The people created a hamlet that was part of the environment. All the roads were dirt, and they went around any pine trees that were in the way. The sidewalks were made of wood. Some of the buildings were built quaint, but the terrain demanded an architecture like that.

We stayed at the Pine Inn, owned and operated by the irascible John Jordan. Across the street was the Theatre of the Golden Bough. We went to a musical revue there. The cast, the musicians, and certainly the stage hands were all local. As far as I know, the score and the lyrics were composed also by Carmelites.

Oh sure there were real estate agents also, but the all-out exploitation of the village had not begun. At that time it was not a tourist run. In 1929 the City passed an ordinance which stated in essence that Carmel should be primarily a residential community. The extent to which this has been violated is absolutely grotesque. This is called Progress.

Well, what do you say when something of beauty passes? I am glad that I had the experience before desecration. The same thing happened to Aspen, Colo. It was pristine and beautiful in 1944. Now it is a big, stone skating rink.

One might say that the immense showing of the work of the Impressionists at present in San Francisco indicates a similar bond between man and nature as that shown in early Carmel. This school has become the most beloved of all periods in art. This is funny as when these paintings were first shown the critics were venemous. I think that their popularity arises from their empathetic feeling about people and the environment. The subject matter is clearly recognizable, but not cold and tight as the work of the School of the Academy.

Apparently the Impressionists began showing in the 1870s and had a series of exhibitions in Paris, eight in all, the last being in 1886. There are painters of that period, notably Van Gogh, who did not show in these exhibitions, but are very well known. Gauguin is sparsely represented in this exhibit. Edouard Manet was the, perhaps unwilling, leader of the school.

To me their main contribution has been to see life as more than precise physical form. As it is really impossible to reproduce things as they really look on a flat surface, they broke from that approach. They use color to create an entity on the canvas. Perhaps the most innovative was Seurat who put down small dabs of color which when you stand at a distance resolve into forms. Those Impressionists who did that are also known as Pointellists. You see the Academicians painted the ocean blue, the foliage of the trees was green, and so on, but the Impressionists found that complimentary color gives life.

For the most part the names that we are familiar with are very well represented, Degas, Renoir, Cezanne and Monet. There are others who were prolific in output, but about whom we have heard very little. One of these is Gustave Caillebotte who for me is a very dull painter. There is a very large canvas of his of gentlemen on a street in Paris. His color is dead compared to that of others in the school. The paintings of two ladies come through strongly — those of Mary Cassatt and Berthe Morisot. I believe the first was not recognized for some years, perhaps because she was American. The oils of the latter are so full of lightness and grace. There are a few strong contrasts in values, yet the surfaces "work" very well.

Other painters whose work is shown, but are not perhaps well-known, are Paul Signac, Camille Pissarro, George Sisley, and Odilon Redon.

Pierre-August Renoir is very well respresented, I cannot help but say that his skin tones are great. This is not easy to do. You just don't squeeze it out of a tube, although I believe that you can buy pigments that are so labeled — you know, Flesh.

To review the show properly would take several weeks of looking and writing, so I will simply mention favorite paintings. The Seurat that is best known as "Sunday Afternoon on the Island of the Grande-Jette." This canvas is complex and the space very well developed. There is splendid use of warm and cool color. There is also the marvelous shape of the woman's behind, a posterior that achieves a great full curve because of something they wore underneath the skirt in those days. When used in the hair they are called rats.

Edgar Degas has ample representation. I liked one of the more casual works entitled "Laundresses Carrying Linen in Town." This is painted on paper which is mounted on canvas. This is bold, loose painting. Claude Monet is very well represented. Perhaps the most famous of his oils is of the train station, but I liked "The Turkeys" more for its superb use of the space, for whites against greens, and for the red of wattles.

There is a magnificent Pissarro in this collection. It is called "Apple-picking." I don't know of any painting in which the picture plane is worked with more delicacy, subtlety, and attention to graphic values.

Alas, by the time that this appears in print, Les Impressionistes will be gone, but there are many excellent reproductions of their work available.

The Magic of Americana.

"Chowder Town" by Charlotte Sternberg 19½" H × 39" W

Art by Charlotte Sternberg and William Jauquet.

What is "Americana"? Quite simply, things that are uniquely American. It is creations that tell the story of our land, our people, our culture. It's handmade quilts and horsedrawn buggies, clocks and crocks and tobacco tins. It is things from the past that serve today as nostalgic reminders of easier times, simple pleasures and homespun virtues.

Americana is the art of Charlotte Sternberg and William Jauquet, shown in Carmel exclusively at GWS Galleries. The painting pictured here is available as a signed and numbered fine art print, as are many others. These original woodcarvings are among those being shown at GWS Galleries.

NOTICE OF DEATH OF ELINORE C. WORK AND OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE
Case No. MP9757

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may be otherwise interested in the will or estate of ELINORE C. WORK also known as ELEANORE C. WORK, and as Mrs. T. A. Work

A petition has been filed by MILTON A. MARQUARD, Jr., in the Superior Court of Monterey County requesting that MILTON A. MARQUARD, Jr. be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act.

A hearing on the petition will be held on August 8, 1986, at 9:30 a.m. at 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey, California 93940.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should either appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court or present it to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 700 of the California Probate Code. The time for filing claims will not expire prior to four months from the date of the hearing noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may serve upon the executor or administrator, or upon the attorney for the executor or administrator, and file with the court with proof of service, a written request stating that you desire special notice of the filing of an inventory and appraisement of estate assets or of the petitions or accounts mentioned in sections 1200 and 1200.5 of the California Probate Code.

SUMMONS

NOTICE TO DEFENDANT: BILLY JACK WISE; YVONNE WISE; DOES I through V

YOU ARE BEING SUED BY PLAINTIFF: JACK BRANNON

You have 30 CALENDAR DAYS after this summons is served on you to file a typewritten response at this court.

A letter or phone call will not protect you; your typewritten response must be in proper legal form if you want the court to hear your case.

If you do not file your response on time, you may lose the case, and your wages, money and property may be taken without further warning from the court.

There are other legal requirements. You may want to call an attorney right away. If you do not know an attorney, you may call an attorney referral service or a legal aid office (listed in the phone book).

The name and address of the court is SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF MONTEREY, ERNEST A. MAGGINI, Clerk, 240 Church Street, P. O. Box 1819, Salinas, CA 93902, case No. 83438.

The name, address, and telephone number of plaintiff's attorney, or plaintiff without an attorney, is CLARK A. MILLER, 21 West Alisal St., Suite 101, Salinas, CA 93901, (408) 424-1764.

NOTICE TO THE PERSON SERVED: You are served as an individual defendant.

Upon reading and filing evidence consisting of a declaration as provided in Section 415.50 CCP by Jack Brannon, Plaintiff, and it satisfactorily appearing therefrom that the defendant, respondent, or citee Billy Jack Wise, cannot be served with reasonable diligence in any other manner specified in article 3, Chapter 4, Title 5 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and it also appearing from the verified complaint or petititon that a good cause of action exists in the action in favor of the plaintiff, petitioner, or citee therein and against the defendant, respondent, or citee and that the said defendant, respondent, or citee is a necessary and proper party to the action or that the party to be served has or claims an interest in, real or personal property in this state that is subject to the jurisdiction of the Court or the relief demanded in the action consists wholly or in part in excluding such party from any interest in such property:

NOW, on motion of Clark A. Miller, Attorney for the Plaintiff, Petitioners, or contestants, IT IS ORDERED that the service of said summons or citation in this action be made upon said defendant, respondent, or citee by publication thereof in Carmel Valley Outlook, a newspaper of general circulation published at Carmel, California, hereby designated as the newspaper most likely to give notice to said defendant; that said publication be made at least once a week for four successive weeks.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that a copy of said summons or citation and of said complaint or petition in this action be forthwith deposited in the United States Post Office, postpaid, directed to said defendant, respondent, or citee if his address is ascertained before expiration of the time prescribed for the publication of this summons or citation and a declaration of this mailing or of the fact that the address was not ascertained be filed at the expiration of the time prescribed for the publication.

AIDS program trains volunteers

A series of training sessions for the Companion/Advocacy Program of the Monterey County AIDS Project begins Friday, July 25. The local program is modeled after San Francisco's Shanti Project. Training will cover such subjects as AIDS and sexuality, patient advocacy, death and dying, AIDS and substance abuse, psychosocial issues of those with AIDS, and other topics.

For more information about the program, and for an application, write Monterey County AIDS project, Box 221785, Carmel, 93922, Attention: Companionship/Advocacy Program Director. Or call the answering service in Salinas, 1-424-5550.

Senior citizens offered check-ups

Free health check-ups for persons over age 55 will be offered by the Senior Citizen and Nursing Services (SCANS) program of the Monterey County Health Department. Appointments are required for the check-ups, which are offered at different sites in Monterey County throughout the month.

The service will be offered in Carmel at the Presbyterian Church, Ocean and Junipero. To make an appointment, call 899-4271 or 757-1061.

Support group for the sexually abused

The Monterey Rape Crisis Center operates a free weekly support group for victims of rape, incest, sexual assault or molestation.

The group is open to both men and women, and meets from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. each Thursday. Educational psychologist Jaquiline Forbes coordinates the group. For more information, call 373-3955.

Alzheimer's Disease group gathers

A support group for caregivers of persons with Alzheimer's Disease and related disorders meets from 1:30 to 3 p.m. every other Thursday in the library at the Monterey County Health Department office in Salinas, 1270 Natividad Road.

Group leader is Mary Moran, geriatric social work specialist with the Mental Health Division of the health department. For more information, call 424-0946.

Adolescent chemical dependency studied

Brightside ACT Carmel, an alcoholism and chemical dependency treatment center, will sponsor a professional seminar for persons concerned with the treatment of adolescent chemical dependency.

Persons who are concerned with these issues are invited to call Brightside for more information regarding a free luncheon seminar. For details, call 624-4559.

Suicide Prevention seeks volunteers

If you are someone who can listen, understand, and give calm, competent and gentle support to a distressed person, the Suicide Prevention Center will train you to become a member of a supportive team of volunteers helping people on a crisis line.

Crisis line volunteers serve an average of four hours per week, six months after training.

Volunteers are also needed to assist with the fund-raising committee and speakers' bureau. For more information or an application, call 375-6966, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. After 4 p.m. and on weekends, call 649-8008 or 424-1425.

Feed a hungry musician

The musicians for the 49th season of the Carmel Bach Festival are working up an appetite.

Big Sur Coast Serenity And Seclusion

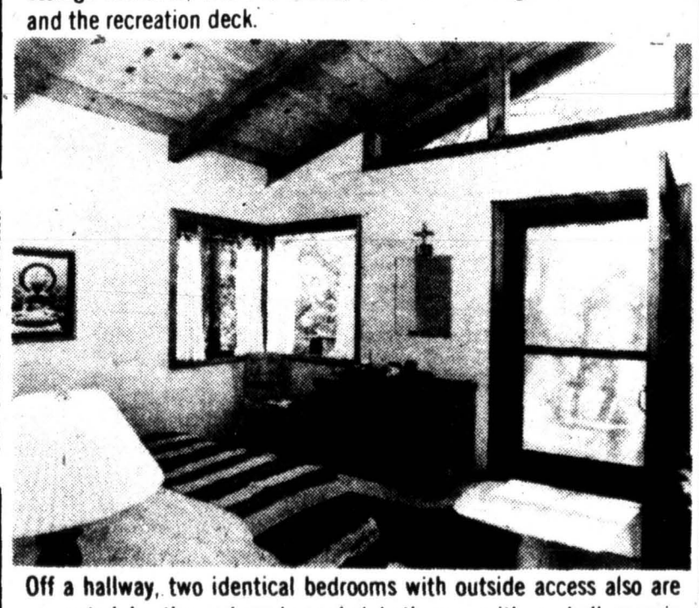
Vast ocean view framed by the wooded slopes of Partington Canyon is enjoyed from this ridgetop, redwood home wrapped by a deck as well as from a nearby studio/guest house and a recreation deck with a hot tub, all secluded by native oaks and redwoods enhancing a sun-oriented, 5.6 acre site.

The living room has a metal-hooded stone fireplace, also a woodburning stove, floor-to-ceiling placement of glass, an exposed-beam ceiling of pine, a dark-stained oak floor and grasscloth-covered walls. Similar ceilings, floors and walls are found throughout the architect-designed interior.

The kitchen, divided from the living room by shelves above a handsome redwood slab bar, has tiled counters, paneling and cabinets of redwood and a convenient door to the deck leading to laundry and storage facilities, also the sauna, the latter serving both the house and the recreation deck.



Off a hallway, two identical bedrooms with outside access also are separated by the redwood-paneled bathroom with a shell mosaic counter topping a handcrafted redwood cabinet. The brick-floored studio/guest house has redwood walls and a pine ceiling, view windows, shelves, cabinets and a sink. A carport containing workshop and storage space, exterior lighting and a roof sprinkler system add to livableness of this property providing view, peace and privacy. $350,000.
